

DEBATE ON LOYALTY OF LA FOLLETTE TO BE MADE IN SENATE

Committee Authorized to Conduct Investigation of Wisconsin Sen- ator's Alleged Seditious Remarks

WASHINGTON, Oct. 5.—Five hours' discussion in the Senate tomorrow of disloyalty charges against Senator La Follette will furnish a dramatic climax for the war session of Congress. The arrangements were made today after a Senate committee had been directed to investigate the Wisconsin member's recent speech before the Non-Partisan league at St. Paul.

With adjournment sine die set for three p. m. the last day of the session promises to be devoted almost exclusively to this finale, the last of the important pieces of legislation having been sent to the White House today. At 10 o'clock and a brief recess followed, the Senate resumed its session. Senator La Follette will begin a three-hour speech in defense of his public utterances and in answer to his critics, with two hours remaining before the adjournment hour for replies to be made by Senator "Kilgore" of Minnesota, and possibly others.

Until the agreement was reached, adjournment plans were suspended, but leaders believed tonight there would be no hitch in tomorrow's program.

Authorize Investigation. In executive session today the Senate adopted without debate a formal resolution empowering a select committee and elections subcommittee to proceed with investigation of the La Follette speech at St. Paul. The inquiry is limited solely to the accuracy of the speech and to substantiation of Senator La Follette's statements regarding the loyalty of the Wisconsin senator. The report of the committee will be made when Congress convenes in December. A report from the committee reflecting investigation of like disloyalty reflections upon Senator Stone of Missouri, Chairman of the Senate foreign relations committee, also was adopted. The report declared that communications filed implicating disloyalty to the Missouri senator were not sufficient basis for an inquiry.

Upon receipt of an accurate copy of the speech, Senator La Follette will be asked to explain the statements made by him. The inquiry into the speech promises to be brief and probably without necessity for the subcommittee's going to St. Paul.

Arrangements were made today for beginning the first phase of the inquiry into the accuracy of copies of the St. Paul speech. Senator La Follette's speech at St. Paul, September 26, and asking La Follette if it was a correct copy and if not to state wherein it was not correct.

Two hours later Senator La Follette replied that the copy was not a correct copy, but that he could not just now state wherein it was not correct. He said two correct copies had been mailed him from St. Paul and that as one was received he would turn it over to the committee.

Senator Pomeroy said tonight he expected the speech would be received by Tuesday, when the subcommittee would be ready to proceed with the second phase of the inquiry—the fact-finding of St. Paul. The committee is said to have taken the position that some sort of official action as to the St. Paul speech was essential in view of the

21 BILLION DOLLAR CONGRESS TO END

All Records Are Broken for Achievement Says Martin

WASHINGTON, Oct. 5.—Chairman Martin of the Senate appropriations committee in a review of the achievements of this session of Congress and of appropriations and contract work for the fiscal year 1918 issued today, says the session breaks all records.

Total appropriations aggregate $16,501,866,815, which, with the total appropriations for the second session of the sixty-fourth Congress and the total contract authorized for the present fiscal year, makes a grand total of $21,300,730,000 in appropriations and contract authorizations for the present fiscal year.

"Any criticism leveled at the Senate and House growing out of the impatience to place the country upon a war basis at the earliest possible moment," said Mr. Martin, "in my judgment is unfair and indicates a lack of appreciation of the enormous amount of work which the two houses of Congress have performed."

SWISS PLANNING NEW LEGATIONS

BERNE, Oct. 5.—The Swiss federal council has decided to extend its diplomatic representation in Turkey, Rumania and Egypt. The Swiss consular service also will be increased materially to prepare for greater business after the war.

MUST OVERTHROW GERMANY, SAYS ROOSEVELT, TO GET PEACE

Turkey Must Be De- stroyed and Austria Be Broken Up

"FREE ARMENIA"

Declares U. S. Wishes Only Recognition of Monroe Doctrine

NEW YORK, Oct. 5.—Theodore Roosevelt, speaking here tonight at a "national service" mass meeting under the auspices of the mayor's committee on national defense, declared the only peace which will make the world safe for democracy is the peace of the complete overthrow of Germany and the dissolution of Austria and Turkey. Included in the program he outlined were a free Arabia and Armenia, Poland and Lithuania with an independent Cadeh commonwealth and a Jugo-Slav state.

"Continually we hear promises of peace," he said. "I think the circulation of such rumors is injurious to America and to the cause of decency and democracy. We should make it clearly understood that the concept of Germany has been such that we regard as enemies of mankind all people who would strive to bring about a peace based upon treating Germany, Austria and Turkey on the one hand and the Allies on the other, as standing on a footing of equality. The only peace that will make the world safe for democracy is a peace based upon the complete overthrow of Germany and the dissolution of Austria and Turkey."

"Unless we have used the phrase in a hypocritical and insincere manner, this is the way to make the world safe for democracy and the only way; and this is the means by which we can achieve the peace of overwhelming victory. The concept toward Armenia and Syrian Christians has been such as to make it evident that the Turk must not only be driven out of Europe but the empire destroyed. As for Armenia, freedom, give Armenia freedom. The California State Federation of Labor in its eighteenth annual convention in regular session assembled in the city of Sacramento, in speaking a message of calmness and tolerance to all citizens of the world, declared this great war crisis, therefore, be it:

"Resolved, That we ask for Robert M. La Follette, the greatest right of all democracy, a right to be heard, a right to express the views of an intelligent minority for on this rock is founded all liberty."

"Resolved, That we convey to Senator La Follette our confidence in his integrity and loyalty as a true American citizen."

Every thought he differ with the great body of labor and our people on some questions of the war."

Another resolution presented by T. C. Ryan of the San Francisco Teachers' union, seeking to discourage union labor from "binding" themselves by long agreements with their employers to the detriment of the incoming executive committee. The same action was taken on a proposition to ask all organized labor men to discourage the police of amateur bands and orchestras from competing with union musicians.

The alleged attempt of District Attorney Fickert of San Francisco to prevent the holding of a recall election against him was denounced in a resolution by Hugo Ernest of San Francisco.

Delegates to the labor convention also approved a resolution denouncing alleged attempts by District Charles A. Fickert of San Francisco, to prevent the holding of a recall election against him. Resolutions were adopted urging organized labor to strive for the success of the second liberty loan and endorsing the suggestion of President Wilson that the educational system of the country be liberalized by the production of studies of social and economic questions, bearing upon the problems of community and national life."

British Consolidate Gains

With the British secure in all the positions they won Thursday along the more than eight-mile front of the Ypres sector in Flanders, Field Marshal Haig's men were busy Friday consolidating their newly won positions. Nothing but the dropping of shells from German guns served to interrupt the breathing spell the British were taking, except here and there small counter attacks.

In addition to the enormous casualties inflicted on the Germans the British captured 4,446 prisoners in Thursday's attack, among them 114 officers.

Comparative quiet prevails on all the other battle fronts. Apparently the Teutonic Allies in Rumania, after several weeks of virtual inactivity, again are preparing to attempt to force back the Russo-Rumanian line. The Russians have been forced to sustain an offensive near Radatz, while near the Bugz river region attacks by Hungarian troops have been defeated.

Admission is made in the latest Vienna official communication that the Italians were successful in winning trenches from the Austrians on the western slope of Monte San Gabriele.

In Russia a coalition cabinet had formed with M. Kerezhsky as premier, notwithstanding the demand of the democratic congress that no government should be constructed without the sanction of congress.

SAYS ALL MUST AID TO WIN WAR

Rich and Poor Alike Must Pull Together Says McAdoo

ABERDEEN, S. D., Oct. 5.—"Every one in America is able to do something to win this war," declared Secretary McAdoo in an address here tonight in which he urged the necessity of liberality to the liberty loan. "No one class can win the war," he continued. "The rich cannot do it alone and if it were done by the rich alone it would never do it for us to let them do it alone if they could. The men of moderate means cannot do it alone and the poor men do it alone. But all the people pulling together can do it. In a democracy it is essential that every man do his part according to his means. This is what American stands for; that is what the selective draft means; that is what every principle of democracy implies, so we must all do our part."

The secretary asked the American farmer to take a large part of this issue in the first issue, he said, he directed that farmers should not be solicited before they were borrowing money to plant spring crops. Now that the harvest is in and the farmers have benefited by the prosperity as which as a class," he called upon them to subscribe.

BERNSTORFF INTRIGUE WITH BOLO PASHA IS REVEALED BY LANSING

Messages to Von Jagow Asking for Money to Cause Split of Allies Made Public

WASHINGTON, Oct. 5.—More of Count Von Bernstorff's confidential cable exchanges with the Berlin foreign office were made public by the state department today, furnishing documentary proof of the extraordinary activities of Bolo Pasha, now a prisoner in France, and throwing further light upon the machinations of the German diplomatic service.

The messages, signed by Von Bernstorff and by Von Jagow, then foreign minister, show that $1,700,000 which the ambassador obtained authority to place to the credit of Hugo Schmidt, then a representative of the Deutsche Bank at New York, was sought as a loan to lending money to the German government in France and was counted upon to bring peace. They were exchanged in February, 1916, when the French Socialists were threatening to overthrow the government and there was talk of France being threatened of war with Germany.

The "wily" Bernstorff, mentioned against expressions in the German press concerning internal French changes, suggesting that German might assist all his plans. He was careful not to put down the name of the political personality, saying a verbal report would be made as soon as a trustworthy messenger could be sent.

Hugo Schmidt testified in New York yesterday before State Attorney General Lewis, telling how the money was placed to his credit, with instructions from Von Jagow that it was to be disposed of as Adolf Pavestadt might direct. Pavestadt already had told the attorney general that Von Bernstorff obtained the fund to finance a scheme of Bolo Pasha for peace between Germany and France.

The state department, which has been keeping the matter secret, has now revealed the names of the persons who were involved in the transaction. The names of the persons who were involved in the transaction are: Bolo Pasha, who was the main figure in the scheme; Hugo Schmidt, who was the intermediary; and Adolf Pavestadt, who was the one who actually received the money.

The state department also revealed that the money was used to finance a scheme of Bolo Pasha for peace between Germany and France.

Operators Want Increase Absorbed in Higher Coal Prices

WASHINGTON, Oct. 5.—Bituminous coal miners of the central competitive field won their fight for a general wage increase tonight, when operators and miners' representatives in conference here reached a compromise agreement on the terms of the new contract. Bois Says Was Misted

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 5.—Professor Jules Bois, French lecturer here, by State Attorney General Morton Lewis, in New York in connection with the activities of Bolo Pasha, gave out a lengthy statement here tonight affirming his patriotism and denying that there was anything improper in his dealings with Bolo Pasha. He said that he had given to him, for the purpose of aiding Bolo Pasha in his propaganda work in this country.

"I admit," he said, "the definite judgment which will pass its decree on the case of Bolo. If he is guilty, I have always acted in good faith according to the dictates of my conscience, as proved by facts. I shall by my work get together in full the $500,000 voluntarily given to me by other patriotic men and women and employed for that, and I shall devote this same amount to some French war fund."

Mr. Bois said that he first met Bolo Pasha in Paris in a newspaper office early in 1916. In New York, Bois telephoned him, recalling their conversation in Paris.

"We met a few days afterward," the statement continued, "Bolo saying: 'I am arranging for the accommodation of representatives assigned by ally papers to cover the news at the concentration points.'"

Without a heavy charge, the railroad attorneys told the commission, shippers would load cars and change destinations and consignments at will, thus contributing to the congestion of the lines.

One of the greatest factors in last winter's coal shortage, the commission was told, was the practice of shippers in using coal cars for storage.

GIVE FURTHER DRAFT ORDERS TO GOVERNORS

WASHINGTON, Aug. 5.—Misunderstanding as to the powers of governors of the states to review the action of local or district courts in cases of draft or military service, caused President Marshall General Crozier to telegraph to governors today a supplementary explanation of their duties in that regard. The governors and adjutants general of the states have been swamped with appeals for re-hearings upon which they had no authority to act.

"Only where through an error in law or through the non-cumulative knowledge of the registrant a man has been held for service who should be discharged or exempted," the message said, "is authority to request re-hearings by the board granted to the governors."

BERLIN, via London, Oct. 4.—The German version of the battle in Flanders, as reported in the supplementary statement issued from German headquarters tonight is as follows:

"On the battlefield in Flanders, the British during today's great attack penetrated only about one kilometer deep into our defensive zone between Poperinghe and Ghent. Especially bitter fighting is still progressing to the east of Zonnebeke and west of Beclare."

OFFICER CUTS THROAT

EL PASO, Tex., Oct. 5.—With his throat cut, First Lieutenant John H. Andres, of the medical detachment field artillery, was found dead in his room at a hotel today. He came here from Camp Cody, Durango, N. M., yesterday. His home was given as Duluth, Minn. According to a fellow officer who accompanied Andres to El Paso, the lieutenant was worried over private affairs.

DENY POPE HAS REPLIED

WASHINGTON, Oct. 5.—Denial that Pope Benedict in transmitting to the Allies Germany's reply to his peace note, accompanied it with a supplementary communication of approval, is contained in a semi-official publication from Rome.

The official dispatch declares that Pope forwarded the German reply absolutely without comment or endorsement of any kind.

PARIS, Wednesday, Oct. 3.—The president of the municipal council of Paris has received 270,667 francs from the American Red Cross for the families of officers and soldiers domiciled in Paris in want through the war. The president of the general council of the department of the Seine has also received 123,333 francs for similar distribution in the suburbs. The president of the council of Saint Etienne received 50,000 francs for the benefit of wounded in the department of the Loire.

MAYOR NOW FACES CONTEMPT CHARGE

Philadelphia Executive Refuses to Produce Detective Reports

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 5.—In addition to the charges of conspiracy to commit murder, aggravated assault and battery and violations of election laws in connection with the political feud in the fifth ward, in which a policeman was killed, Mayor Thomas R. Smith now faces a charge of contempt of court for refusing to produce original reports, detectives made to him on conditions in the ward. The mayor was bound over in his own recognition pending the ending of the present hearing of his case.

The contempt charge was one of the suggestions of the hearing, which has continued four days and will be resumed Monday. The mayor refused to produce the originals on advice of counsel on the ground that he cannot be compelled to give evidence to the prosecution in a case where he is the defendant.

BELGIAN GOVERNMENT ISSUES GRAY BOOK

HAYRE, Oct. 5.—The Belgian government has issued a gray book refuting allegations against Belgian civilians contained in the German book of May, 1915, in which it was said Belgian civilians savagely attacked German troops in the early days of the war and that the measures adopted by the Germans were necessary in the interests of the preservation of the German army. According to the gray book, between 40,000 and 60,000 houses were destroyed by the Germans. It gives the approximate number of provinces as follows:

Antwerp, 3,633; Brabant, 5,338; West Flanders, 18,000; East Flanders, 2,500; Hainaut, 3,500; Liege, 2,344; Luxembourg, 8,900; Namur, 5,343. The city of Ypres 2,700 houses were destroyed and in Louvain 1,128, the book says.

MR. MOONEY SEEKS RELEASE

PATRIOTIC NOTE IS TO BE SOUNDED IN CHURCHES

Dr. Giffen, of Congregational Church Maps Out
Campaign for Fall

Subjects of Vital Interest
Are to Be Taken Up in Analysis

The second Liberty loan campaign, for the greater portion of this month, is to reach into the churches, the patriotic and the religious to be given association in emphasis by pastor and people.

In all of the churches the "four-minute" men are to be given place by the side of the pastor, the allotted time being devoted to the pointing of duty in the loyal support of the government in the contest that reaches across the waters.

In this connection one pastor, the Rev. Dr. T. T. Giffen, of the First Congregational church, is to make the very pronounced effort, setting apart the sermon hour in part from time to time for such representation, on the part of the lay speaker, as may be desired.

Dr. Giffen is also out with an announcement of a series of practical sermons for the month that are to deal with life in its several phases, upon vital questions of the hour.

Topics of Sermons

October 7, "In This Sign We Conquer"

October 14, "What is a Fair Wage?"

October 21, "Christian Science and Its Critics"

October 28, "Is God on Our Side?"

For the evening hour, during October and November, Dr. Giffen announces the following:

October 7, "What do we know about the times in which Jesus lived?"

October 14, "What do we know about Jesus' birth and early training?"

October 21, "The Voice in the Wilderness. The people's expectation. Did Jesus believe that he was the Messiah?"

October 28, "In Galilee. The people hear him gladly."

November 4, "The Seribes and Pharisees' mission. Who were the Seribes and Pharisees? Why did they quarrel?"

November 11, "The Miracles. What were they? Did they happen. Do they now?"

November 18, "Jesus and the foreign nations. Did he minister to the world or only to the lost sheep of the house of Israel?"

November 25, "The Disciples—their character, their call, their training. Did Jesus found the Church?"

Religion and Patriotism

In special announcement, as touching the Liberty loan campaign, Dr. Giffen, in the pulpit, is to be scattered among his parishioners, voiced the following exhortation:

Religion and Patriotism

October 12, Liberty loan month. Every loyal citizen who can will buy bonds. We have some of our boys to the army. The next thing is to help these boys win the war by loaning the government our money. How many of the ten million bond buyers can this church furnish?

Earl Towner will play the organ and direct the music during this church year. He will be assisted by Mrs. A. R. Jack, as soloist, and a choir which is being carefully organized.

COLLEGE COURSE

IS ON INCREASE

Hour Classes Have Been

Productive of Better

General Work

The introduction of hour classes in the Fresno high school and the Junior College is one of the most radical changes in the school program this year. The new system puts the work of the Junior College students on a strictly college basis, and the faculty find the work is decidedly improved.

The enrollment of the collegiate department is up to that of last year and it is on the increase. A large proportion of the high school graduates have taken advantage of this advanced training than in previous years.

A new course in history is being started by Professor Briggs, a new member of the faculty. This course is a combination of economics, sociology and history. The Spanish class under Professor Malone is one of the popular elective branches. Anthropology is being considered, and it is installed will be under the instruction of Professor Wallis.

DEPORT PRISONER

TO FIGHT KAISER

When he expressed his willingness to accept deportation and return to Italy, his native land, to fight the Kaiser, Louis Germino, a prisoner at the county jail, charged with a statutory offense, was promptly disposed of as a defendant before the superior court, and will leave today or tomorrow for San Francisco to be given into the hands of the Italian consul there. Arrangements were made by Sheriff Thorwaldson after negotiations with the Italian consul, and Germino will be taken north in time to sail for Naples on October 12.

RELEASE DENIED

MAN MUST WORK

H. A. Sessions, county probation officer, yesterday filed a report and recommendation to deny A. L. Taylor's application for release on probation. Taylor was arrested August 29 on the charge of failure to provide for his wife and two children. Sessions further recommended that Taylor be put to work as a plumber and pipe fitter on county work. Chairman Chris Jorgensen of the board of supervisors has said that he would have no objection to sentencing Taylor to work under the penal code, providing for such a sentence.

A FALSE NOTE

The action of the State Federation of Labor in its Lafayette resolutions should not be exaggerated. The Federation did not endorse the views of Lafayette, and, in fact, expressly attributed them to a "minority" which presumably most of the Federation members did not belong. What it did was to endorse the views of Senator Lafayette's personal honesty and loyalty in holding them and his right as a representative of the minority to a hearing.

Nevertheless, we think the passing of the resolutions, and especially the sending of them to Senator Lafayette as a tribute, was a great and justifiable error. Senator Lafayette is doubtless honest and doubtless thinks he is loyal. But the practical effect of his utterances is to diminish the loyalty of others in America and to weaken the cause of America abroad. The practical effect of the organized dissimulation of Senator Lafayette is to dissimulate the loyalty of America and to emphasize that loyalty abroad. The practical effect of the resolutions of the California State Federation of Labor is to commit California and union labor to whatever extent this Federation represents them, to an attitude of sympathy, in a direction where an attitude of condemnation is both more useful and more loyal, and to put this Federation of Labor out of touch with the organized action of most of the other bodies which have undertaken to speak for American sentiment. We do not think it would be just to the resolutions to attribute to them any meaning except that expressed on their face. But we also think it would have been more just to American loyalty in the war not to have adopted them.

"VIEWPOINTS"

Farmers, "practical" and otherwise, are already beginning to plan and organize for meeting the labor problem next year. And some of them are very jealous of any effort to meet it through any other authority, even by an organ of the State, like the State labor bureau, or of the University, like the farm advisers. They say that these bodies, or any others, except the farmers themselves, differ irreconcilably from the "farmers' viewpoint."

The objection is of course important, in spite of the natural wonder whether, if the farmers' viewpoint is one that no else shares or will accept, there may not be limitations to that viewpoint which need to be explained by including other viewpoints. But it is also important to specify exactly what is this "viewpoint" which the farmers' leaders say no one else has.

For instance, is it that the farmer, at the beginning of the season, usually thinks that the labor shortage is going to be greater than other people think it is? The answer is that there should be some body to take a census of facts rather than of opinions, and that action could be based more intelligently on these facts than on the present clash of "viewpoints." Many of the farmers did very intelligently regulate the statements of facts gathered by the University authorities on labor this year, but experience has since confirmed the University's reports.

Is it that the farmers are opposed to Union labor, and that they suspect others might tolerate it? The answer is that farm labor is never likely to be long or effectively unionized, but that it ought very decidedly to be "organized" on another basis than that of unionism.

Is it that the farmers want wages low, and they are afraid other people will urge making them higher? The answer is that under present conditions high wages are the greatest possible boon to the farmers, and that when these conditions change, farm wages will be easier to put down than any others. Also, that the way to make wages steadily and beneficially high, instead of chaotic and extortionate, is to organize on both sides.

Is it that the farmers want to import Chinese labor, and that they are afraid that governmental or semi-governmental bodies would not take this viewpoint? The answer is that Chinese labor could not be got any way, except through governmental action and with the consent of politicians, and that if Chinese labor is an impossible political policy, it is a waste of effort to consider it as a practical farming policy. To put it in the most extreme form—suppose, for the sake of the argument, that the farmers were unanimous for Chinese labor, that they were right about it, and that they could prove they were right. If they could not get Chinese labor even on that showing, then they would better divert their efforts to whatever they think is the next-best policy. And that is the exact situation. Congress will never come down the bars of Chinese immigration, as a favor to California, if both the California Senators oppose it. And both the California Senators would still oppose it, if the farmers were unanimous for it, if they were right, and if they proved they were right. This is a condition, not a theory, and it is immovable. For our part, we are glad to know that the farmers are not unanimous, we think they are not right, and we are sure they cannot prove they are right. So the scheme might as well be dismissed from the beginning, as 100 per cent impossible. Those who think this is a just and unjust have their remedy in complaining of the stubbornness and stupidity with which the world is governed, but they will be doing themselves a favor not to waste any practical effort in the impossible task of trying to find anything practical to do about it. James O. Dolan and William W. Johnson are in the Senate for longer than the war will last; they are not subject to recall, and on this question they are both unchangeable. If you think they are therefore public enemies, it is your privilege to find one against them, on a practical basis, three or five years from now, and let the people decide. And, if you did that, and if the farmers were unanimous, the majority vote would still be against you. So the thing is 100 per cent hopeless from the beginning, and should be forgotten.

Wherefore, it would seem to follow that the points at which the farmers' leaders complain that other people's "viewpoints" differ from theirs are precisely the points at which viewpoints should be discussed, with those others, to find a practical ground on which something practical—not, probably, what the farmers want, but what they can get—can be done.

LABOR WELL LED

The re-election of Daniel C. Murphy as president and Paul Scharenburg as secretary of the California State Federation of Labor is a reminder of the extremely high quality of the men whom organized labor has been choosing for its leadership. Both Murphy and Scharenburg are men not merely of exceptional training and ability, but of intelligent and liberal views and sound temperament, the last men in the world to advise rash and precipitate action. Other labor leaders of the state—Daniel O'Connell, P. H. McCarthy, Seth Brown, Walter Matthews, Labor Commissioner McLaughlin, as well as Walter MacArthur and Andrew Furuseth, who were labor leaders before they went into other public service, are men of very large capacity and training; men who would be leaders anywhere and among anybody. If business men and farmers habitually did half as well in selecting their public leaders—or if laboring men did half as well in choosing candidates for public office as they do for union officers—most of our industrial unrest and misunderstanding would be settled without trouble.

This is a situation that ought to be taken into consideration by such bodies as the alleged "Law and Order" committee of the San Francisco Chamber of Commerce, the Los Angeles Merchants and Manufacturers Association and other openly or covertly anti-union bodies. In dealing with organized labor they are dealing with a body better organized and better led than they are, responsible, intelligent, trained and conservative. They can deal with labor through no other channel so capable and so trustworthy. If what they want is to deal, this is the way to do the dealing. If what they want (as it usually is) is mastery, then of course they can only get that by fighting—and can not keep it long even by victory in a fight. The age of mastery is gone.

WHY NOT SAVE WHAT DOGS EAT?

Editor Republican: Daily I read of the need of conservation. Especial emphasis seems to be laid on the women and the kitchen. "Right, they are willing and efficient," I say. I sit by my window and see our little world go by—we are a small city. I say something that needs catching and conserving. Dogs and more dogs! Little and big poodles on foot—would be aristocrats, playing in autumn. All selected well for the dog. Do they live on air? If not, are not they eating some soldier's portion? Why not attack them next for conservation, tax them, collar them, can them, keep in mother earth and give the poor woman some new viewpoint for saving on the plate and in the bread basket.

Pray give these women a rest and go after the dogs. It will be so much more interesting to have them—the dogs—"banned."

SUCCESS IN GOOD CLOTHES.

Nothing clothes detract in percent from a man's efficiency, according to Dr. George Van Ness Dearborn, professor of psychology at Harvard, who addressed at national gathering of clothing manufacturers and store owners in this city. "The man who wears good clothes," he said, "is more confident, more self-reliant, more successful in business, more successful in life." Dr. Dearborn said, "The well-dressed man spells success and inspires confidence. First impressions are most important, and many a man has got a place largely on account of the cut of his clothes. It goes without saying that the man who wears the best and the best himself with taste, but it even pays the poorer man to do the same, for an air of prosperity is contagious. Finally, well-fitting clothes add to one's self-respect, incite personal cleanliness and aid the man in business."—New York Times.

PUNISHED THE KAISER.

Mrs. Christina Tropp, 555 Callender avenue, Peoria, Ill., today related the story of a row she had with Kaiser Wilhelm. "When he was a small boy," said Mrs. Tropp, "I was a young girl attending a fashionable girls' school and I remember with Wilhelm frequent visits of the royalty to the summer resort town of Cuxed. The Kaiser and his brother Henry passed us in the road one day and Wilhelm said 'small things to us girls.' 'All right,' we were all about the same age and size, we all pitched in and gave him a licking. I got in several good shots on Wilhelm's face before he took to his heels." Mrs. Tropp came to America 55 years ago. Now she's building for United States soldiers.—Chicago Exchange.

WHY THE WAR IS AT A STANDSTILL

Writing in Harper's Magazine for October, General Mallette of the French army explains how the new science of war has developed and the present standstill on the western front has occurred.

"During the first fifteen years of the twentieth century Europe was alive to the possibility of a general war. In almost every country military service was obligatory and universal, and the number of young men under arms increased yearly. More men were following the profession of arms as a career than at any time in the history of the world. The problems of military strategy and tactics and of military preparation and equipment of the nations now in war. On sea as well as on land, these problems were being examined from every possible angle, and the evolution of industry and transportation was kept constantly in mind. Military and naval experts seized upon new inventions and studied them from the standpoint of their possible effect upon the conditions of carrying on the war. As far as we could see, nothing was neglected. We had the benefit, too, of being able to study in actual practice the modifications necessitated by new inventions and the remarkable development of industry and methods of transportation and communication. There were the Spanish-American War, the Boer War, the Russo-Japanese War, the Turkish-Italian War, and the Balkan wars. It would take a lifetime to read what has been written about war in the period from 1898 to 1914. And yet, in all the mass of published material, I might even go further, and say in the archives of the war departments of Europe and America—what was there to indicate that critics and general theorists were prophetic? Did any belated nations have the knowledge and vision to prepare for the kind of war we are waging today? One can say categorically—no! Otherwise there would have been victors and vanquished long before now."

"We who took part in the Battle of the Marne felt instinctively that France was saved in the second week of September, 1914. But we did not know that France's new instinct would not have proved right had Germany been much better prepared to wage offensive warfare under the new conditions than we were. Fortunately for us, Germany's vision was as limited as ours. Although she had been preparing her campaign for a while, she had not been able to crush us. Her preparation was stupendous—but had not proved in the right way. Nor had we or any other belligerent. The Germans could not break through the intricate position from Arras to the sea, that barred the way to Calais. Nor, by the same token, could we follow up our victory of the Marne, and drive the Germans out of their entrenched positions on the Aisne. The Battle of the Marne was the end of an epoch in military history, and the battle of the Yser was the beginning of a new epoch. The new epoch was the war was not demonstrated by the Marne alone. The handwriting on the wall was visible only after Germany's lack of success in the Battle of the Yser, the first offensive of the new epoch. Since then the war on the western front has been practically a standstill."

Atlantic City and St. Paul

Wherein Two Conventions Widely Apart in Expressed Purpose, Really Agree

By CHARLES FERGUSON

Author of "The Religion of Democracy," etc.; Commissioned by President Wilson to Investigate Business Combinations in Europe (Copyright, 1917, by The National Editorial Service, Inc.)

The Chamber of Commerce of the United States in convention at Atlantic City, and the national non-Partisan league, in convention at St. Paul, taken together represent all important current opinions upon the relation of our working power to our fighting power. At unfortunately, these opinions cannot conveniently be taken together into a single mind.

Imagine the kind of reception that would have been accorded at St. Paul to Mr. C. F. Ferguson's proposition, so warmly welcomed at Atlantic City, that the government should enforce a maximum wage scale upon workingmen! Imagine the tumult of something other than applause that would have greeted Mr. Towner's apostrophe to the patriotism of his business if it had been uttered at Atlantic City.

In the dissonance of these voices east and west we have a full and fair monition of that "discontent with domestic conditions" which Secretary Lane says is the "principal danger" that stands in the way of winning the war. And yet it is to be noted that there is a kind of rude harmony pulsating like a fugue underneath this dissonance.

The two conventions agree in one thing. They agree that the government should take on new and enormous powers over the working organization of the country. Both voice toward what the sociological doctors call "state socialism." They differ only in this: that Atlantic City is anxious that state socialism shall be applied to St. Paul, while St. Paul is eager to have the hard hand of government regulation laid upon Atlantic City.

After Mr. Albrecht has told us that people who are not business men, ought to have their incomes limited by law, Mr. Cathering—speaking as chairman of the committee of the national business-men's association that has to do with the National Defense Council—declares that "chaos exists in business today" and that we cannot bring order out of this chaos or win the war unless we make haste to create a new organ of governmental control on the drastic model of the British Ministry of Munitions. And after the St. Paul convention has expressed its scorn for the patriotism of his business, it cheers until the roof shakes on mention of the idea that the bulk of the corporate structure of the country should be forced into government ownership by stress of price fixing and high taxation.

Those who are at home with the proletarian philosophy, who are able to believe that majorities are inspired of the Holy Ghost and that the solution of all problems of peace or war consists in getting more people to vote more times on more issues, and then convincing their nation, elations upon the lips of plutocratic despots—may well rejoice to observe that the historic pull and haul between "capital" and "labor" is becoming centripetal, and promises to land us very shortly in a state in which nobody will ever think of doing anything until he has discussed it with the community or been authorized by it.

DIDN'T LIKE THE ODDS.

Benjamin Birdie, the famous jockey, was taken suddenly ill, and the trainer advised him to visit the doctor in the town. "Well, put you right in a ditty," he said. The same evening he found Benjamin lying curled up in the stables, kicking his legs about in agony. "Hello, Benny! Haven't you been to the doctor?" "Yes." "Well, didn't he do you any good?" "I didn't go in. When I got to his house there was a brass plate on his door. 'Dr. Krumpholtz, Ten to one. I wasn't going to monkey with a long shot like that!'"—New York Exchange.

SUSIE'S BACK AT WORK.

Johnny had a love for Susie—used to write her mushy letters. Would you know how fast he met her? She was knitting army sweaters. Susie was a "Pine Tree" soldier, and for suffering work, was named, but her Johnny was a soldier. "No, by heck," he cried—and voted, Susie, when she saw her suffering dream demolished by her "belters," like a well-conducted mule went on knitting army sweaters.—Lowell Courier-Childen.

Will the Conductor
Throw Them all off?
Ans.-No, He Will Not

There is a train in California or Oregon or somewhere. And it is loaded with passengers. And the conductor has a passenger who is a little man. And he's got orders to stop the train and throw off passengers that haven't tickets. And he hasn't got enough. He can't do it.
Every one of the 600 passengers was checked because he was a perfect speed-ster of mischief, at a fiddle. And every one of them is ready to fight.
That's why they're on the train. Because they're good fighters. And they're going over to France to beat the Kaiser and Hindenburg and the whole German army.
And what will the poor, little conductor do when he walks on the aisle, or down the aisle, whichever he does, and can't pull a ticket out of any man in the six hundred?

Will he throw them off? No, he will not throw them off. He is a patriotic conductor. He would rather lose his job than throw 600 husky soldiers off a train.
That's the kind of a patriot that little 6-foot-2 conductor is. No, sir, he would never throw 600 soldiers off a train.
It all happened this way:
The excursion board or somebody—they're all passing the buck—forgot to give transportation to the boys who left yesterday for Camp Lewis.
And Sheriff Thorpe said well enough the train. And he filled his gas tank and started out in his high-powered speedster to overtake the S. P. special at Madera. May Marshall went with him with tickets bulging from every pocket.
They would have caught the train without any trouble if the train hadn't left Madera fifteen minutes before they got there.

LIBERTY LOAN MASS MEETING
Fresno Commercial Club, Tuesday,
October 9, At 9:30 a. m.

An urgent invitation is extended to you by the state Liberty loan committee to attend a mass meeting of business men and merchants Tuesday morning, October 9, at the quarters of the Commercial Club. Your presence is urgently requested. Come and bring some one with you.

F. A. HOMAN, Chairman,
Merchants and Businessmen's Committee.

This is the summons mailed yesterday by Secretary Patterson, to all members of the Merchants' Association and business men generally, for the purpose of conference that shall be in the nature of giving the second Liberty loan campaign the proper send-off.

At this meeting the plans and purposes of the state auxiliary committee are to be outlined and ways and means for the "speeding up" of the campaign suggested.

To make very sure that this assembly of business men shall be largely attended, the business men's committee of the auxiliary body has detailed a man to each block of the business district of the city, whose duty it shall be on next Tuesday morning to round up every tradesman and professional man in his block and bring him to the Commercial Club rooms. This is the command of Frank Homan, chairman of the committee.

Details of Campaign

Yesterday was a busy season at the Liberty loan auxiliary headquarters, the working out of the plans that are to be put in operation, not later than Monday, covering the thought of the men entrusted with the responsibility of making the successful canvass.

For the distribution of speakers and literature, the county was sub-divided yesterday so that every home shall be the object of approach by some individual soldier and there is to follow the periodical gatherings for the "four-minute" men who are

MALAGA HOLDS OLD TIME RALLY FOR RED-CROSS

Red Cross workers of Malaga held a rally at the Baptist church in Malaga last night, September 30, to show membership rally to increase the membership of the Malaga Red Cross auxiliary from 25 to 100 members. There was no lack of enthusiasm. The meeting was splendidly attended and a program of songs, readings and speeches took up the evening.

The program opened with a song by the boys' and girls' booster club. A reading by Henry Fishman followed. Then came a report by Mrs. W. F. Tomner, a reading by Clyde Allison, a song by Walter Maxwell and a melody of American tunes on the piano by Lucie Cartwright.

Addresses were made by William Glass and Vir Elmer Scott and the pastor of the church, the Rev. Thomas Howell, and Mrs. Cartwright, president of the auxiliary, urged the whole-hearted support of the Red Cross.

receiving their assignments for the days of the canvass.

In the prosecution of this work, each town is to finance its own activities, but speakers are to be furnished, as desired, from the main office in Fresno. This procedure is made necessary, as the government found it to be too great an undertaking to even provide for the advertising of the sale of the bonds.

Advertising Campaign
With the development of the campaign, the committee has found it necessary to go more fully into the matter of using the newspapers for bringing the facts of the bond sale or subscription to the attention of the people at large.

This work has been committed to the Borg advertising agency and the appeal is to be made daily.

Yesterday it was decided to hold a mass meeting on the evening of Saturday, October 13, at 7:30 o'clock, at the high school auditorium. At this assembly Wm. Neilson, representing the United States government, and Geo. Cochrane are to be the speakers. On Sunday the "four-minute" men are to invade the churches, with their presentation of the National need and situation.

At the Theaters
Saturday evening the "four-minute" men are to be at the theaters of the city for the arousing of the public conscience and for the picturing of the imperative need. The assignment for the evening is:

Kinema—The Rev. H. O. Brecken, D. White—M. P. McCormick, Fresno Photo—W. A. Sutherland, Riton—George Osborn, Clavis—"Vir Elmer Scott."

The subject for this Saturday night discussion is to be "Forward to Victory—What the Government Has Done Thus Far."

COMMERCIAL CLUB'S SMOKER APPEALS TO MEMBERS

Wednesday Feature
Luncheon Programs
Announced

Something of all the Commercial Club's program stands for something of its influence in this community and much of its beneficent activity during the recent management was evidenced last evening at the first smoker of the fall season, the smoker that marks a new era in the club life.

For the evening, there was a general response on the part of the membership, nearly every man being in his place about the tables, the scene presented being one of animation and increasing fellowship.

From the first song by the Misses Ruth, Charlotte and Emma Collins, to the conclusion of President Williams' semi-annual report, the evening was a most enjoyable one, the members and offering was of a nature that indicated the large vision for the activities of the club for the coming winter months.

For the time, all of business was brushed aside, and in the showing made for the period covered in the reports read, there was indicated the attainment of the grade sought, with a gratifying decrease in the cost of maintaining the club.

President Williams Reports.

At the conclusion of the beautiful luncheon spread, and with the lighting of the pipes, President Williams was called upon to read his statement of the activities of the club, a reading that was listened to with the deepest interest, for in the assembling of the members of this magnificent, the most indifferent member was brought to realize that his club was well to the front in the matter of being an important influence in the community for the accomplishment of much good and in the bringing to the attention of distant points, the fact that here in the city and county of Fresno, there is a bunch of business men and grocers who are doing the things that count and in a way that leaves no question as to the intelligent thinker, whoever he may be, changing this way.

In presenting his financial statement, and in reviewing the accomplishments for the six months, President Williams said, in part, as follows:

Review of Activities.
In submitting the figures of the expert, the amount shown as delinquencies, is an amount carried over from last year and not created in this year, during the past year, the delinquencies and we are charged with delinquencies, which of course should not be confined to one administration, or in other words, we are charged with practically $1,000 as a liability, more than that, but it should be charged with. And further submitting the report, the County day will show a net receipt of about $750, so that instead of there being a $218 decrease of liabilities, or in other words $218 of increased business, it is really $2,960, and our liabilities correspondingly lower.

The general statement shows that active liabilities as against active assets inclusive of the items charged with, delinquencies, and the amount received which does not appear in this report from the County day, we are very little "in debt."

Wilson for Future.
Touching upon the future activities of the club, with relation to the criticism of the club, the president declared of public work Mr. Williams said:

"Our Board regrets that a little friction arose in the Club over a misunderstanding of what was being done, and being done at all times to allay any feeling of unrest and to place every member in connection with all facts of the working of the club and receive suggestions and to comply with requests wherever it could be done, we requested every member to appear at a special meeting of the Board for suggestions and statements, and are pleased to state that the members requested did call and gave your board many valuable suggestions for the better interior working of the club. We have put some of them in operation and others will be put in operation at the earliest possible date, and we are more than pleased also to report that the friction, if it can be so called, has been entirely dissipated, and so far as your board is concerned, the club harmony exists in all departments of the club.

Bit Unmindful.
Personally I regret, however, that more active co-operation was not had in the working out of our County Day celebration. This perhaps was due to the fact that many of the members did not see the necessity for such a celebration or its purpose, but the lack of co-operation was not due to any lack of interest in the success of the venture or the welfare of the club. The venture was a success both financially and in the accomplishment of the purpose for which it was launched, that is, bringing the people of Fresno County together in a mutual handshake, and for the establishment of a closer, more fraternal and friendly relation between the people from all parts of the county.

"With the close of the summer months all civic work planned has been fully carried out. We have no civic work on the program at the present time, and will not undertake any civic work until the people of Fresno county respond to and call for civic funds, but we realize we cannot expect a large civic fund because of the incessant demand upon our people for war funds and charity, a condition being cheerfully met by all classes of our people because it is for a good cause.

Feature Luncheons Again.
On next Wednesday at noon we hope again to inaugurate the Wednesday noon luncheons, making them as attractive and interesting as possible. And on next Friday night we give the first dance for the fall season, and I urge every member of the club to consider himself a committee of one to make all our subsequent functions successful. Without the co-operation of every member of the club it cannot be expected that the club will grow. We expect to receive committee work, and hope to get some more active committees in instances where the present committees either have not sufficient time nor desire to do the work, and especially where there is an endeavor to create and renew interest in the membership committee so that at the end of the year our membership may increase to 75 members at least.

UNKNOWN'S INQUEST TODAY.
Though there are no means of identifying the remains of the man killed Thursday morning in the Santa Fe yards, presumably when he fell from the brake-beam of a freight car, an inquest will be held this morning in Coroner Bean. The principal witnesses will be the members of the train crew of the "Santa" and car inspectors from Calaveras.

MANY CHANGES MADE IN ZONE ORDINANCE BY COMMISSION

Apartment District Materially Increased; Greater Building Depth

MORE REVISION
IS CONSIDERED

Increase Local Business
Centers; Wholesale Districts Along Tracks

After careful investigation, the city planning commission yesterday afternoon ratified the following changes in boundaries of districts of the zone ordinance as previously announced. Some of these changes had been contemplated for a number of weeks, while others were suggested by committees of civic organizations now looking into the ordinance and districts proposed.

Greater Depth On Tulare

To establish an equitable and uniform depth limit, on Tulare street and other streets, where the rear lines of lots do not fall on alleys, rear boundary lines will be 150 feet from the street, instead of 100 feet as previously announced, except where the blocks are less than 300 feet in length, when the depth will be one-half of the distance between the two streets. North and south boundary lines, will in general follow alleys wherever possible. This action was taken on the urgent request of the committee of the Merchants' Association and of citizens who appeared at the hearings.

New Apartment Districts

The following districts for class three for apartments, flats and dwellings were added:

1. Street from San Joaquin street to Voornman avenue, 1 street from Calaveras street to 150 feet of El Dorado street, 1 street from Calaveras street to Divisadero street, Portcharp from Divisadero street to Sumner avenue and from the canal to Elizabeth street, Van Ness avenue, Calaveras street to Voornman avenue, N street from Calaveras to Voornman avenue, Calaveras (north side) from N to Voornman, Voornman avenue (south side) from Calaveras street to Yosemite avenue, Blackstone avenue (both sides) from Voornman avenue to north city limits, except the business district at intersection at Belmont avenue.

These apartments will be limited to 12 stories detached buildings, finished on all sides like the surrounding fine residences. Many property owners in the districts have appeared before the commission at the public hearings, regarding such changes, and the commission announced that it was convinced that their reasoning is sound.

Public Building Districts

Following changes in class four districts, for public buildings, parks, playgrounds, churches, etc., were made:

All public building districts of class four, previously designated in the business districts of class five and six, as exceptions, are hereafter to be included as part of the class five or six districts in which they lie. The latter are defined as including such buildings or uses and no business district can be hurt if a church, for instance, should sell its property for business purposes, if it is surrounded by business uses.

Exception, however, is made of the court house plaza, which is to remain in class five, it being the opinion of the commission that this property should never be used for any other than a public purpose.

A petition was received from the Southern Pacific railroad for the classification of the station park, in which the Chamber of Commerce building is located, as business district. The commission announced that it could not do so yet, as it was not clear whether it should be classified as a park in class four, as long as it is under lease to the city for that purpose. Further hearings on this question will be held.

Fresno Street Change

Between N and O streets, between the business district of class five, now extending as far as N street, at the urgent request of the property owners.

Wholesale Districts. To establish additions to the wholesale business and garage districts of class four, were made: 1. Street on the east side of p street, including Santa Fe reservation, between 150 feet south of Tulare street and Ventura street, east to the alley between Q and R streets, no further as Mono streets, and then including the interlocking parking plant. This change was made after long consideration on the showing made by the property owners, and at the request of many business men on the various civic committees.

If street from Fresno to Kern streets, excepting the station plaza. This makes all of I street, from San Joaquin street to the north, a wholesale district to Monterey street.

2. Street from Kern street to 150 feet north of Fresno street, on both sides, to be class six.

Local Business Districts. At the showing made by the motor dealer's committee the commission agreed that there is need for all supply stations and garages at the local business centers.

New local retail business centers were approved at Belmont and North-dano avenues and at J and Divisadero and El Dorado streets.

Height limit for the industrial districts were changed to conform to the new boundaries adopted on September 29 and previously, and also to

TOOMEY MOVES TO STOP GAS INCREASE

Protests to Railroad Commission Against Proposal to Raise Rate

Mayor Toomey yesterday took the first steps to prevent an increase in the Fresno gas rates when he directed a letter to the State Railroad Commission, in which he frankly declared that Fresno was determined to resist every effort on the part of the Pacific Gas and Electric company to raise the rate above the present price.

The mayor indicated to the commission that Fresno would like to be represented at the hearing and also informed the commission that he had discussed a reduction of the rate with Superintendent Neely of the company.

The mayor's letter follows: "I notice by our papers of October 1 and 2 that the Pacific Gas and Electric company have made an application to the railroad commission to raise the gas rate in Fresno from the present rate of $1.10 per 100 feet of the month, and $1.10, if not paid prior to that time, to $1.35 and as mayor of the city, representing the people, I want to make a formal protest against this raise and also ask for information from your honorable body as to how we should proceed in this matter to bring it before your attention and file any other papers.

"To be frank with you, in talking with Mr. Neely some time in May, I had it up with him about a reduction in the rate instead of an increase. We would like to get into the matter with you very fully. Thinking you in advance for any courtesy you can show us in the matter of advising us truly to proceed, I beg to remain very truly yours, cover the Santa Fe reservation in the four-story limit of class C as adjoining property.

Contemplate Changes. The commission also has under serious consideration the following additional changes:

1. To add local business districts at Fresno avenue and White avenue, Fresno avenue and McKenzies avenue, and Fresno avenue and Divisadero street, north side, Tulare street from Angus to First, North First street at McKenzies avenue, Tulare avenue and Sixth street, Ventura avenue and Sixth street, Santa Clara and E street, Trinity street and Kearney boulevard, Trinity and White's bridge road.

An apartment district of class three on O and D streets between Fresno and Kern streets, and on D and E streets between Kern and Mono streets.

A hearing of property owners will be held to consider J street between Tulare and Calaveras streets, as to whether it would not be of an advantage to keep further garages out of these blocks.

Y. W. Files Protest. Julia A. Sayre, president, and Maudie Wolff, general secretary of the Young Women's Christian Association, addressed a letter to the commission protesting against the creation of other garages near the site of their proposed new building. The letter follows:

"The Y. W. C. A. is deeply interested in the future of the block on J street between Tulare and Calaveras streets, as they own three lots there on which they expect to erect a handsome building, they would like to feel assured as to the type of buildings to be erected there in the future. At present there is one garage on each side of the block, and if more are erected, it would make an undesirable environment for our work and perhaps compel us to build elsewhere."

HOUSEHOLDERS TOLD
HOW TO BUY FOOD

County Sealer Jayne Addresses Brotherhood of Powis Baptist Church

Following the address of Harry P. Jayne, county sealer of weights and measures before the members of the Brotherhood of the Powis Memorial Church on "Household Weights and Measures," the Brotherhood passed a resolution endorsing the good work being carried on by the Sealer and pledging support and co-operation in continuing the work along present lines, as explained by the speaker.

The Brotherhood originally was composed of the men around a neighborhood, in which the church is situated, and was organized last year for the purpose of discussing matters of community welfare. Last night was the first meeting of the winter season of the Brotherhood. It will now meet regularly on the second and fourth Friday evening of each week throughout the winter months.

All men of the community, as well as the members are privileged to attend the meetings to which special speakers are invited. J. E. Branch, secretary; George Hobday, vice president; and Robert Wright, treasurer.

In his address last night, County Sealer Jayne, after outlining the organization of the Department of Weights and Measures and explaining the provisions of the laws under which the work of inspection is carried on, proceeded at length to give advice to the householders in the matter of making purchases in order to further patriotic economy and operate toward the reduction of the high cost of living.

The work of a weight and measure official, apart from the actual testing of scales, was revealed as being varied and interesting. In the arbitration of disputes between men and merchants as to quantity purchased and in the settlement of differences between the grower and the packer the work was shown to be both important and necessary.

"The old process of splitting the difference," said Jayne, "which was used for years prior to the organization of the weight and measure department—in this county was never satisfactory or just. The confidence of the buyer for the seller and vice versa was destroyed forever by such tactics, and confidence is the business man's greatest asset."

The sealer touched upon the saving to the people by full weight delivery of ice and the good that would result from the passage of the bread standardization ordinance by the Board of Trustees at the request of Mayor Toomey. Standardization of other food products was advocated.

"Standardization means economy to the wage earner and will result in saving millions each year from the food speculator and the price jumper," said Jayne.

In his answer to the complaint of R. H. Butler, owner of a $25,000 ranch in Mount Campbell Co., said Frangool seeks to recover $200 deposited with plaintiff as an earnest for the consummation of a certain agreement of sale, dated July 3. Defendant alleges that late in July by mutual agreement, he delivered up the certain ranch premises to plaintiff, who in turn agreed to return to him $200 deposit. Frangool also alleges that since the date of the second agreement, plaintiff has actually sold and delivered the ranch to another purchaser.

M. Shungooschian filed amended answer Thursday to complaint of O. Boyajian et al. through his attorneys, Harris and Hayhurst. Defendant, who owned a 60-acre ranch near Sanger valued at $45,000, admits having given an option for sale to plaintiff but denies that they earned the $2100 commission for which they are suing. Defendant declares that before the date named by plaintiffs as the one which deposit was accepted from A. Kerkorian, a probable purchaser, he had already sold said property and that he had so notified plaintiffs. His contention is that his notice acted as a revocation of said option.

There is no age limit, and there is no limit to the enthusiasm shown by all the classes. Golden Long, physical director, has made up his schedule of classes, and already the competition and exercises show a healthy rivalry among the teams.

The noon business men's class has been formed into four teams—Destroyers, Submarines, Torpedo Boats and Cruisers. The Destroyers are R. S. Huffman, captain; E. G. Hinchson, C. T. LABOR DELEGATE TENDERS REPORT

Labor Council Hears of State Federation's
Convention

Last evening's meeting of the Fresno Labor Council was featured by a partial report of President P. L. Irwin, who has just returned from Sacramento, after attending the convention of the California State Federation of Labor, which closes there tonight.

President Irwin reported that the convention, during his stay, in Sacramento, accomplished a large amount of constructive work in the interest of the labor of the state, and that the delegates were royally entertained by the state capital. Entertainment consisted of banquets, sightseeing trips and other events including a grand ball.

Among other actions taken the state federation sanctioned the United Railroads' strike in San Francisco, voting financial and moral support to it. Further, the convention passed a unanimous resolution calling upon the federal government to investigate the San Francisco bomb cases.

The contest for the next state convention developed a three-cornered effort, in which Fresno came out second best. San Diego won the convention with 18,000 votes, Fresno received 9,000 votes and Vallejo 4,000 votes.

Of the delegates representing local unions G. W. Boswell of local 1104 Carriers' Union No. 294 has returned, and was present at the council meeting last night. Others expected here today are: A. L. Thomas, Teamsters' No. 431; L. Keller and S. P. Buxter of the Barbers local, and Patrick Grace and Fred Meyers of the Butchers' local.

HUMAN REGARD IN TWO FORMS SHOWN

Accident Brings Out Two Extremes of Friendly
Inclination

Seldom do the two extremes of human regard meet so completely as they did last evening in an accident case which came before Chief of Police Goehring. The negative extreme developed when a reckless motorist ran over John Kliner, breaking his leg in two places and speeding on without offering assistance to the sufferer. In striking contrast the Good Samaritans, E. G. Blackburn and J. D. McMillan, of 2342 Kern and 821 I street respectively, unloaded their families by the roadside for out on Elm avenue in the dark and left them there while they tenderly loaded Kliner into a machine and hastened to the emergency hospital with him. Later Blackburn and McMillan returned for their families and also cared for the family of the injured man.

Kliner, after temporary treatment, was removed to the Burnett sanitarium.

The accident occurred while Kliner was out adjusting his gasoline with his car drawn to the roadside. The passing motorist just missed crashing into the car.

BURN AND BURY IS INSPECTOR'S ORDER

"Burn and bury carcasses of animals that have died and are left in the field," is the strict order of County Live Stock Inspector John E. McKenna. As a sanitary precaution against the spread of infectious diseases in stock, the inspector also recommends that farmers vaccinate their animals in neighborhoods where disease is known to exist. Some anthrax, as are hog cholera and black leg in calves. McKenna also reported that the mink test for glanders given three horses proved negative.

Miss Ruberta Tanquary, just returned to America after a year and a half spent in England and war-torn France, will lecture on "The Part Women Play in the War" at the Civic Auditorium on Friday evening, October 13, under the auspices of the Echo Avenue Knitting club. The lecture is in charge of Mrs. George E. Church and a pair of old shoes will be the only admission charged. The lecture of Miss Tanquary will be illustrated by stereoscopic views given to her by the French minister of war. In addition to the lecture, Mrs. Nellie Barker will sing "War Babies" and Jullabys, accompanied by Mrs. Romayne Hunkins. The Fresno high school cadets will present a tableau of life in a war camp and will sing "Teatime Tonight."

"COUGH MEDICINE" IS CARBOLIC ACID

Kindly Neighbor Makes
Blunder; Child
Nearly Dies

Given a teaspoonful of undiluted carbolic acid instead of cough medicine, the four year old son of T. M. Dugan of Huntington Lake is in a serious condition at Burnett Sanitarium.

The child's mother was ill at a local hotel and the motherly woman occupying the adjoining room undertook to look after the little boy. Alarmed by his continued coughing, she went to the medicine chest, picked up a bottle and poured out a spoonful of "cough medicine." The child at once went into spasms and Dr. R. M. Jones was summoned. The kind-hearted neighbor had given the child carbolic acid by mistake. Dr. Jones washed out the boy's stomach with diluted alcohol and holds out hope of his recovery.

The family arrived from Huntington Lake on Thursday and were on their way to Los Angeles when Mrs. Dugan suddenly was taken ill.

There will be given by Harry James, Golden Long, physical director, who was for four years in the Philippine Islands as physical director of Y. M. C. A. work there, will show a number of colored views of the Philippines and the association work among the Filipinos.

A demonstration of gymnastic work will also form a part of the program.

PINE FLAT MEETING TO BE HELD MONDAY

Estimated Cost of Project Per Acre Will Be Announced

A meeting of the executive committee of the Kings River Conservation District together with the committee of fifty will be held Monday morning at 10 o'clock at the city hall. This will be an open meeting and all interested parties are invited to attend.

At this meeting it is expected that figures and estimates of costs will be presented showing what the cost per acre will be for the proposed work of the well watered districts decide to remain out. It is said the Fresno District of 214,000 acres uses about 275,000 acre feet per annum which is an average of 1.3 acre feet and consolidated "canals" provide irrigation for 30,000 acres furnishing probably an average of one acre foot for the land irrigation. Alta irrigates about 100,000 acres and does not provide in excess of 1.3 acre feet per acre.

Geo. C. Reeding of the Fresno district will preside at this meeting.

Y. M. GIVES MAGAZINES TO PARTING SOLDIERS

Over 500 magazines were distributed by the Y. M. C. A. among the soldiers in the cars yesterday before they left for American Lake. Robert E. Law, office secretary with a committee of the members of the association went through the cars and handed the magazines out to the tired men. This gift was much appreciated, said Law, and the men from Fresno and the south were profuse in their thanks for the remembrance.

The association has been doing this work with each successive draft, and the more current magazines are welcomed at the association building. Boxes of books are being prepared for sending off to the military camps. Donations of books and magazines are invited.

THREE MULES GIVE MAN THREE TRIALS

Clarence C. Bolling will go to trial for the third time on the charge of grand larceny, when he comes before Judge George E. Church October 29. Bolling was accused of having stolen three mules near Tulare Lake, and putting them on his ranch on the San Joaquin river. He was found guilty by the jury and made application for probation. By mischance the probation matter was not filed until twenty-four hours after the day for pronouncing sentence. A second trial was granted on appeal when the jury disagreed. One of the features of the second trial involved Witness Hill in a perjury charge. Hill was convicted and his case is now on appeal.

EARLY RESIDENT CALLED BY DEATH

After an illness covering a period of nearly five years, Mrs. Jane Howard, widow of the late George Howard, pioneer resident of Millerton, Fresno county's former seat of government, died late last evening at the home of her sister, Mrs. C. A. Campbell, 120 Diamond street, her death removing a very much beloved woman. She was a native of Illinois and came to California in 1861, and her husband settling near Stockton. In 1871 they moved to Millerton and fourteen years ago they came to Fresno to make their home with the Campbells. The deceased had been a widow since about two months after she and Mr. Howard came to Fresno. Mr. and Mrs. Howard, to their many friends throughout the county, were known as "Uncle George" and "Aunt Jane." When the first Baptist church of Fresno was organized, Mrs. Howard was one of the first members. The funeral arrangements are being made by Stephens & Bean.

Take Your Old Shoes To Courthouse Park Today

FRISCO CASH MARKET
WHERE CASH MAKES NO ENEMIES
WE LEAD—OTHERS FOLLOW

Old Shoe Event Today Promises To Be Thriller

This morning at 8 o'clock at the fountain entrance to the Court House park the work of creating the mountain of old shoes for the needy people of the war zones is to be undertaken.

For the laying of the foundation of the "mountain," the committee of the Fresno chapter, Red Cross, has on hand several loads of the needed old shoes, the Poppy school district, Sanger, and several impatient individuals having brought in their offerings—a fact that has made possible the early construction work.

During the day there is to be a procession of children, each pupil of the public schools of the city being pledged to bring at least one pair of shoes for the municipal collection.

To add to the thrill of the occasion, there are to be taken moving pictures of the shoe piling, so if there be those who have a desire to break into the movies, in a picture that is to be shown the country over, here is the chance, but each individual "actor" or "actress" is obligated to appear with a pair of shoes in hand.

The hour is from 8 a. m. to 6 p. m., and throughout the day there are to be processions from the outlying towns of the county, from every point boasting a Red Cross auxiliary.

ACCIDENT VICTIM IS RESTING WELL

The result was that Leader was thrown out and received a fractured skull and severe lacerations of the face. Dr. W. L. Adams, who is attending the injured man, has hopes for his recovery.

The Dinnerware Department

One distinct innovation in Fresno will be the comfortable arrangement for buying a Dinner Set. The department is arranged in sections and in each section is a "Service Table," at which you may be seated. To this table samples of every kind of ware—French, English, American and others will be brought by competent salespeople. Service, comfort and values will distinguish our Down-Stairs Store.

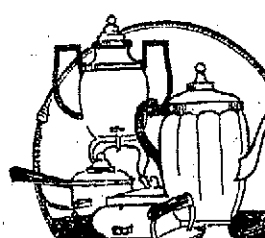

The Glassware Department

Note well the completeness of variety of our Glassware. Imported glass ornaments are here: pressed or heavy glass tableware, blown or cut glass services, deep cut and light floral patterns are all shown in surprising abundance. You'll find many glasses for every kind of beverage—for water, wine, lemonade, beer, liquor, iced tea, punch, etc.

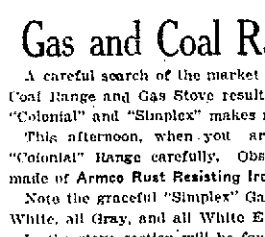

The Ornamental Goods Dept

To beautify your home, our offerings are truly without number. From Italy we have imported Marble Statuary; from France, Bronze Figures; from the Orient, Potteries. Our own country contributes liberally in metal, wood and pottery wares to make this collection of ornaments by far the most beautiful and distinctive of any within many miles of this city.

The Electrical Department

As you come down the wide stairs from the center of the Main Floor to the Basement, you will behold a wonderful display of Electrical Goods. This section embraces every kind of socket appliance for home use—"Universal" and "Hotpoint" Electric Irons, Percolators, (Frying Dishes, Immersion Heaters, "Hoover" Suction Sweepers, etc. Bring your repair troubles to us to be attended to quickly and reasonably.

The low prices for these dependable food preservers will astonish you.

The Lamp Department

With the long winter nights approaching and the coming of the season for entertaining, pleasing, soothing lighting is important. The stately floor lamp, the dainty boudoir lamp and the practical table lamp are shown in the newest creations. Thirty-six samples of various kinds of shades (silk and cretonne) will be lit continuously in a specially built Shade Case. WILL KING CO. OPENS AT WHITE TODAY

Love Triumphs Over Hatred in Intolerance at Kinema

INTOLERANCE - KINEMA (PHOTOPLAYS) - WILL HAYES - PLAZA

MATINEE AT WHITE TODAY

This afternoon at 2:30 the Will King company will introduce their season at the White Theater with a matinee performance of Pretty Peggy at bargain prices.

This clever organization is undoubtedly the most popular of any musical company which ever played in Fresno, capturing especially the better class of patrons by presenting clean, wholesome entertainment without the slightest suggestion of vulgarity. The beauty of the women folk and the cleverness of the comedians, not to mention the originality of the plays has been an appeal to patrons in which the local theatergoers have generously responded.

Two performances will be given tonight at the White. Tomorrow matinee will usher in the new production of "All for the Ladies," a musical revue written especially for Will King and said to present several new surprises. New musical numbers with some spectacular electrical effects have been arranged and the show will be entirely worthy of the excellent investment of the White Theater.

FINAL APPEARANCE OF "INTOLERANCE"

Never to return again, Griffith's "Intolerance" makes its final appearance at the Kinema Theater today. Many people have seen the intently cinematic several times over—always returning as though hypnotized by the historic rush of events. Smashed back and forth from modern tenement and American underworld, to the magnificent spectacles of Babylonian splendor, scarcely a spectator has been able to withstand the onslaughts, or fail to get just what Griffith has been driving at.

Amazing Here and Gripping There.

Taken by itself, the modern episode is the most gripping and intense story ever placed upon the screen. It is the story of a little tenement house family, ruled by the meddling hand of reformers. Likewise the most amazing effect is the culmination of Babylon by the meddling interference of the pagan priests. Surely, the spectator can place his finger upon this underlying theme of "Intolerance," although the dazzling splendor may distract now and then.

Savage Satire by Griffith is Directed at Misspent Reform.

Misguided reformers get a "mighty" swing in "Intolerance." Biting sarcasm amounting almost to savage satire will make the meddlesome voice—whether they agree or not. But Griffith is entitled to the courage of his convictions—for no one in screen history has dared with such reckless daring to point so boldly and it cost close to a million dollars to say it.

URGE WIDER USE OF NIGHT CLASS

Electricity Course Offered in Fresno High School Evening Sessions

Although the enrollment in the night classes at the Fresno high school is steadily increasing, Principal Walter O. Smith believes that a great many others should avail themselves of the opportunity which the high school affords. He points out that the courses are open to any who seek to advance their education and that no tuition is charged.

Thus far the demand has been principally for work in the commercial and shop courses. Eleven have asked for Spanish instruction, and it is many apply between now and Monday evening a class will be started in that branch on that evening.

Courses will be arranged for any branch in which there is a sufficient demand. It is pointed out that the Fresno high school has the equipment and should take the lead in instilling night classes among high schools of the valley.

Special interest attaches to the course in electricity which Professor Bardeau, physics instructor, will handle in the night school, if a sufficient number apply.

A brief outline of the course proposed is given, as follows:

1. Laws and formulas of direct and alternating current circuits.
2. Direct and alternating motors, their uses, size, adaptability and efficiency.
3. Generators, their design and uses.
4. Transformers and distribution of electrical power.

The course as planned will be a continuation of experimental lectures and discussions and will be given if a minimum of fifteen apply.

DAIRYMEN WILL CONFER IN S. F.

Valley Representatives on State Board to Go to Meeting

Directors of the San Joaquin Valley Milk Producers' Association, representing the district on the board of the state association, leave today for San Francisco and on Monday they will attend the monthly meeting of the state organization. The representatives are J. A. Schlotthauer and H. E. Vogel. A. B. Massey, manager of the San Joaquin Valley Association, and S. N. Ayres, manager of the state association, will accompany the local directors.

The monthly meeting of the state association will be held in the office of Morris Weinstock, state market director. It is expected that the meeting will develop some interesting matters in connection with organization and state and district business.

How to Keep Well; Talks on Health

TRENCH FEVER AND SHOCK.

Our troops taking their places on the western front will find disease conditions different from those of any other war in American history. They will be free from danger of typhoid, smallpox, and malaria, outstanding dangers of previous wars. They will find bowel troubles of less consequence than in any previous wars. They will find that the danger of being wounded is less than in some of the fiercest combats of the past. However, there will be a few files in the front line. One of these, a new disease never heard of before this war, is known as trench fever.

Trench fever is ushered in with a sharp rise in temperature—sometimes as high as 104. The fever lasts from one to three days. In less than a week the fever returns and then persists for one to three days. It may come and go in this way through several cycles. This tendency of the fever to persist for a few days, to pass away and then reappear after several days, is suggestive of rat bite fever. Some of the microscopists think they find in the blood of those having trench fever a spiral organism belonging to the same class as that found in the blood in rat bite fever.

The second great outstanding symptom of trench fever is pain in the shin bones. These pains appear early in the disease, are worse at night, and persist for months after all other symptoms have disappeared. The physicians over there are working hard on the prevention and cure of trench fever, but so far they have not discovered much.

Another fly in the ointment is shell shock. While the danger of being wounded on the western front is not so great as was the danger at Gettysburg, the mental experience of those under the terrific heavy gun fire is a higher one. Some of the microscopists think they find in the blood of those having trench fever a spiral organism belonging to the same class as that found in the blood in rat bite fever.

One theory is that this condition is a result of concussion of the brain cells due to air waves from great explosions. Morton Price says that the disease is a form of hysteria due to fear shock. To cure it he thinks the military surgeons should be trained in psychology. The treatment is in considerable measure psychic. To prevent it he thinks every man in the command should have a lecture on shell shock. He should be made to understand that the concussion of the air near an exploding shell cannot produce organic changes in the brain; nothing need be feared from such air concussions; that shell shock is a form of hysteria to be controlled by process of mind, as is true of all forms of hysteria.

One of the disabling conditions prominent in this war is trench foot. As the result of standing long hours in cold water in the trenches the men suffer a kind of infection which results in a fever with nose bleed, jaundice, and a condition of the foot similar to severe chilblains. The treatment for trench foot is as follows:

The feet are bathed in lukewarm water and soap. Absorbent cotton moistened with borated camphor solution is applied to the legs and feet. This is bound on and left for a day. This dressing is applied daily for three or four days. After that the skin is anointed with camphorated oil daily. Small blisters are left unopened. Large blisters are aseptically opened and then dressed with compresses wet with a solution of camphor (30) in ether (1000). Over this the usual moist dressing is applied. This is a good treatment for severe frostbite and chilblains.

Eating State Pencils

Mrs. W. W. writes: "If children who eat dirt and state pencils are given any access to salt they will not have these abnormal habits."

REPLY.

Your experience is limited to one case.

In a few cases. Unfortunately the matter of dirt eating is not so simple as your treatment would indicate.

All Right if Clean. Reader writes: "Will you kindly advise whether, from a health standpoint, it is preferable to eat a tomato before or after peeling it?"

REPLY. If it is thoroughly clean it is all right to eat it unpeeled. It is also all right to eat it peeled.

Blood Loss Danger Point. If I write: "Could you give me any following information? (1) How much blood would a person have to lose, or how long would it take for one's life to be in danger if a wound bled at the rate of fifty or sixty drops a minute? The woman was pregnant and the family physician said it was a ruptured vessel, but could do nothing for it. (2) Will a woman so troubled have the same thing during each pregnancy? (3) What is the cause of vomiting blood during that period? It seems as though it boils, and boils in the chest, then is emitted in a gush. Have had two children and had these troubles with each one, but was much worse with the second."

REPLY. (1) The weight of blood in the body is somewhere about one-third the body weight. An ordinary sized woman bleeding at the rate mentioned would be bloodless in about twenty-six hours. But under ordinary circumstances the hemorrhage would stop before a quart or a pint of blood had been lost (about forty minutes). A pregnant woman could lose that amount of blood through nose-bleed or bleeding from tonsil, several days during the nine months and not be harmed by the loss.

(2) Since you have had this condition with each of your previous pregnancies it is probable that you will have it again. It seems probable that you bleed easily. Probably you would be benefited by gelatin.

(3) I judge you swallow some blood from your nose or tonsils.

How to Fall Asleep. A. A. writes: "Will you tell me how I can get more sleep? How can I quit thinking when I lie down? I sleep only about three hours a night. I am nearly 60 years old and do not sleep in the day."

REPLY. It is easy to say "Go to bed with a calm mind and you will sleep," but it is difficult for some persons to carry it out. Especially is this true when the person concerned has an untrained, uncontrolled mind. But the only cure for insomnia is in mental training. Perhaps the most common advice is not to worry about sleeping. If one will retire reconciled to sleep or not as fortune favors he can sleep usually. But that is nothing more than a step in the training. The next step is to acquire the same attitude toward other things, to accept what fortune brings and cheerfully—at least as a bedtime philosophy.

TO TAKE MALJAN TO PRISON TODAY

Peter Maljan, convicted of embezzlement in connection with fruit buying deals here last season, has surrendered himself on his bonds and is now at the county jail awaiting being taken to San Quentin penitentiary, where he is committed to serve a five-year term. Sheriff Thorwaldson will send the prisoner north with an officer today.

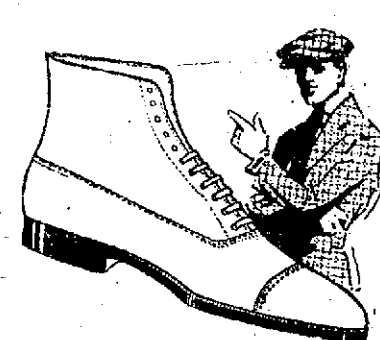

FOR TIRED PEOPLE. Maljan's condition is not unusual for exhausted conditions due to heat, overwork or insomnia. Non-drowsable.

California Oil

NEW COMPANY WILL DEVELOP PROPERTY

Montana-Wyoming Men to Operate on Old Brad
Lease in Midway

TAPPE, Oct. 5.—A. R. Carstensen, secretary and treasurer of the Montana-Wyoming Oil Company, is in the fields looking after business interests connected with the Brad property on section 15, 21-22, which was taken over October 1 by the Montana-Wyoming organization.

The property just purchased by the newly organized company is one of the older ones of the field, though it has never been drilled up because of lack of capital on the part of the owners. Two wells were drilled several years ago. These have been steady producers since that time from a heavy sand which promises to make the life of the wells many years. Good wells are to be found on all premises immediately surrounding the Brad, which indicates a bright outlook for the new owners. Plans are being made to drill ten more wells on the property at once.

The Montana-Wyoming Company is a Utah organization which came into existence early this year. It has a modest capital of $250,000, with the fair value of the stock placed at 10 cents a share. It was the first Utah company to invade the fields of Wyoming and likewise the California fields. It is in the way of securing machinery and pipe necessary to drill in the Wyoming holdings, owing to the enormous demand of the government for the product of the steel mills, caused the Montana-Wyoming to seek property in other fields, with the result that California was invaded in the purchase of the forty-acre tract of the Brad company.

WELL AT MARICOPA IS MAKING GOOD SHOWING

MARICOPA, Oct. 5.—The No. 1 well of the Sunset Extension Oil Company, on section 4, 11-23, of the Maricopa Flats district, which was successfully completed a short time ago, has been placed on the beam and is now being cleaned out. The water which had filled the producing sand is being pumped out and the hole is now showing considerable oil, which indicates that when cleaned out a good production may be expected.

The work, which is being conducted under the direction of Superintendent W. A. Fitcher, has been in progress for the past eight months. The well was cleared of considerable junk, and was then drilled to the big water sand, where it was completed 2,894 feet. It was then finished to the oil sand at 3,447 feet with the 4 1/2-inch casing.

Should a good well be brought in by the Sunset Extension Company it will prove up a large acreage of the Maricopa Flats, which has always been regarded by oilmen as a good prospect of the water condition, which was thought to be so bad as to preclude any chance of getting a well worth while.

FRESNO NEAR TOP
IN RECRUITING

This Station Excelled Only
By Oakland in State
Outside of S. F.

Fresno stands second only to Oakland in the matter of army recruiting among the sub-divisions of the San Francisco district, according to the list of credits for the month of September received yesterday by Sergeant Williams of the local recruiting office. During September 87 men were recruited here for various branches of the army service.

Not only did Fresno rank well toward the top in total enlistments, but as individuals, Sergeant Williams and Glenn Pannus were excellent in their work by a few attaches of the big Oakland station, none others in the state equalling their record. They recruited 36 and 23 men respectively.

Six men were put through the local office yesterday. One of these was sent by Private Tate Miller, who is out through the sub-district on a canvassing tour.

John Adkins of Venice, Cal., joined the medical department. Oz Cunningham of Fresno united with the high-way engineers. Sam DeGidio of Bakersfield enlisted in the engineering supply corps. Thomas D. Brown of Fresno joined the engineers' railway corps. Charles D. Walker of Porterville, recruited in the U. S. infantry service and Edward F. Quinn of Channing joined the medical department.

Herman W. Schweitzer of Tulare was sent in by Private Miller as a recruit for the forestry engineers.

DENIES $1000 SUIT
PRAYS $15 JUDGMENT

Robert Hewitt filed answer yesterday to complaint of Milton Butler, who sued Hewitt for $1000 damages and restitution of premises for 24 of section 14, 14-17. Hewitt denies that he wrongfully entered upon the premises last March, alleging that for two years he had been in possession under an agreement with J. B. Hewitt, who was at the time owner of the place. He denies that plaintiff has been damaged in the sum of $500 or in the further sum of $500 rental. Hewitt declares that he vacated the premises within a month of receiving notice from Butler and that for that length of time he could be due not more than $15, which he prays the court to order judgment in favor of plaintiff in said sum.

GIVEN MAIDEN NAME
Ellie B. Solpher was granted a divorce from Domingos W. Solpher yesterday on the charge of extreme cruelty. The divorce was granted by Judge J. C. Church also restored her maiden name, McDonald, to the plaintiff.

WAR MINERALS TO BE STUDY SUBJECT

State Geologists to Get
Data for Use of U. S.
Government

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 5.—The situation with regard to meeting the demand for petroleum products and other "war minerals" is being given careful consideration by many branches of the Federal and State governments. The annual convention of the American Association of State Geologists has been called to meet at St. Louis, October 8 to 15 for this particular purpose, and in view of the important position which California occupies relative to this matter, Governor Stephens has authorized State Mineralogist Fletcher Hamilton to attend and offer the hearty cooperation not only of the State Mining Bureau, but of the mining public of the state.

The Council of National Defense has called upon the states for aid in encouraging the further development of raw materials which are vitally necessary in forwarding the National war program, and it is believed that the conference mentioned will be fruitful of beneficial results.

It is Mr. Hamilton's intention to particularly emphasize the conditions existing in the petroleum industry in California where stocks are being rapidly depleted in the face of an increased drilling activity and the widespread demand for gasoline and similar derived oil products.

In many ways California is responding wonderfully to the demand for petroleum products. The production of oil in 1916 was valued at $1,065,467, for instance. Steel manufacturers require considerable amounts of this metal in making armor plate, munitions, etc., and the 1916 production for the state increased to $1,571,521. With the 1917 figures not yet compiled, it is well known that further increase will be recorded. Similarly, the value of chrome in 1916 was $11,214, as compared with $28,444 the previous year. Magnesite jumped from $233,461 to $1,511,888; quicksilver from $1,157,149 to $2,003,435; and manganese from $49,683 to $274,601.

The State Mineralogist hopes to return from St. Louis with a definite idea of the further demands which will be placed upon the operators and producers of this state, as well as with the solution of related problems which have as yet received only slight attention here.

INJURED DRILLER RECOVERS
MARICOPA, Oct. 5.—Bert McCune, who had just recently returned to work as a driller for the Standard Oil Company, after losing four months with a broken leg, suffered a fracture of the right arm at the elbow this week when he slipped and fell off a plank walk at the derrick, where he has been working. In some manner his left foot slipped from the walk and threw his weight upon his right leg and arm, which with the leg, such a strained position that the bone was fractured. The injury will likely lay him up for several months.

TO ISSUE OIL STOCK.
SACRAMENTO, Oct. 5.—The Sacramento Oil Company has been authorized to issue 24,000 shares of $100 stock. Thomas D. Wood, F. Irwin, and Frank T. Oles in exchange for the property and equipment of the defunct Sacramento Oil Company, at Sacramento.

TIPSY AUTOISTS
TO GO TO JAIL

Judge Graham Declares
There Will Be No
Alternative for Them

Two defendants charged with violation of the motor vehicle law, pleaded guilty yesterday in Justice Graham's court, one accepting a jail sentence with no alternative offered, and the other paying a fine of $20.

Judge Graham pronounced himself to make no exception of the rule, providing a straight jail sentence for violators convicted of driving an automobile while "in liquor." In response to this determination, Judge Graham ordered out a straight ninety-day sentence to M. E. Akers, who pleaded guilty to motoring while under the influence of liquor. The offense was committed near Calwa and the arrest was made by F. C. Hoss.

Judge Graham's second man yesterday was John E. Talbot of San Francisco, who admitted being guilty of driving between two cars coming in opposite directions.

ANSWERS DR. MAUPIN;
DENIES ALL CHARGES

B. Solomon, traveling salesman for the M. A. Gunn Company, yesterday filed answer to the $3000 damage suit in which Dr. J. L. Maupin is plaintiff. The answer denies all charges in the complaint and asks judgment for costs of suit. According to the complaint filed in June, Maupin's machine was run into by Solomon, February 22, Maupin asks $2000 damages to his machine and $1000 further damages for loss of his use.

JUDGE SAYS CASE

In the damage suit of A. E. Gould against Fred Hock, involving the sale of a Pacific engine lathe valued at $2415, an order was made yesterday by Judge D. A. Coshin giving leave to the respective parties to reopen the case. John A. Steele is attorney for plaintiff and H. A. Savage for defendant, both of whom stipulated that the order for submission be set aside and leave given to reopen.

METHODIST LAYMEN CONDEMN PACIFISTS

LONG BEACH, Cal., Oct. 5.—Pacifists were condemned and loyalty to the government was expressed in resolutions adopted today by the Laymen's conference meeting in conjunction with the annual southern California Methodist conference.

"This is no time for idle criticism of the government, for noisy pacifists or the hysterical cries against a righteous war," the resolution read, and added many other members of the national assembly feel that it is a high and holy service to obey the call of the nation as the nation has obeyed the call of God.

TREASON CHARGED AGAINST PREACHER

CEDAR RAPIDS, Ia., Oct. 5.—The federal grand jury today returned an indictment against the Rev. John R. Schmitt, pastor of the German Lutheran church at Lowden, Ia., charging him with treasonable utterances.

Charles Lowmeyer, Hollander, who confessed he wrote a letter to Colonel W. G. Dowd, member of the state council of defense, was indicted for misuse of the mails. He entered a plea of guilty and received a sentence of three years in Leavenworth.

LEUTENANT REINSTATED
LONDON, Oct. 5.—Lieutenant Douglas Macleod, recently acquitted of the murder of Anton Barmine, a peace candidate, has been reinstated to his position on headquarters staff in France. According to the Standard, a reconciliation between Macleod and his wife has been effected.

The corpse's jaw first returned a verdict of "justifiable homicide" after hearing Lieutenant Macleod's plea that he had killed Barmine in defense of his wife's honor. A jury of the old British police court later brought in a verdict of acquittal.

FLOODS IN CHINA
PEKING, Wednesday, Oct. 5.—Floods on the Huang-Ho or Yellow river, have been broken by floods at two places near Peking, in the eastern part of Shantung province, according to government reports. The water is flowing in a northeasterly direction and probably will enter the grand canal. This, it is feared, will aggravate the situation at Tien Tsin, where there has been no abatement in the rise of the floods.

WAR LIBRARY FUND CAMPAIGN NOW ORGANIZED

County Library Branches and Women's Clubs to Take Donations

$1600 to Be Raised in Fresno District by October 18

With the county now thoroughly organized for the campaign to secure the $1600 which is Fresno county's share of the $100,000 War Library fund, Miss Sarah McCardle, county librarian, states that she feels confident the money will be raised by October 18, on which date the subscription to the fund will close. Miss McCardle has hitherto only appealed to women's clubs and associations for help in this cause, but if necessary, she states she will call on the men's clubs to aid her in her efforts. Yesterday Miss McCardle addressed the musical club at their first meeting in the Hotel Fresno on behalf of the fund.

Already several of the women's clubs of Fresno have responded to the appeal and every day sees an addition to the list. Yesterday the Friday Afternoon club donated $20 to the fund.

A contribution box has been placed on the desk at the public library in order to give everyone an opportunity to subscribe.

Book donations also are invited by the county librarian. The books will be sent off to the various military camps throughout the country as part of the plan of the library fund. In this way an addition to the book stock is expected to be made to the existing military libraries.

The object of the $100,000 fund is to provide books on technical subjects such as engineering, submarine building, and books bearing on all departments of military work.

In order to make the appeal as far reaching as possible Miss McCardle has organized the county by districts, and has also appointed a committee in Fresno city consisting of the presidents of the women's clubs. Following is the list of organizations and persons enlisted on behalf of the work in the county districts:

Does Away With Truss.
The PLAPAP-PADS are entirely different from the article commercially known as a "truss." In fact, they are designed to do away with the use of steel and rubber that chafe and pinch. Their remarkable success is due to the principle of keeping constantly applied the scientifically compounded absorbent, non-irritating material called PLAPAP. The purpose is to contract and strengthen the weakened abdominal muscles, thus closing the hernial opening as nature intended so the rupturing CAN'T come down.

Being so adhesive and when adhering closely to the body shipping or shifting is impossible, therefore they are an important adjunct in retaining rupture that cannot be held by a truss.

Demonstrator Seelcher, whose wife experiences in this country makes him an authority on matters pertaining to the application of PLAPAP-PADS to any rupture, will be at the Sequoia Hotel Monday, October 8, 1917, from 10 a. m. to 6 p. m. and will be pleased to give WITHOUT CHARGE, to all who call, expert advice and trial for home treatment. Do not fail to call on Mr. Seelcher during his stay in the city.

TELL WHY SHIPMENTS OF COAL ARE LIMITED

SAINT LAKE CITY, Oct. 5.—That the coal shortage in California is not due to the scarcity of freight cars, but to the limited facilities in their shipping facilities was stated in the evidence given by S. A. Sweet, president of the Standard Coal Company and C. E. Marshall, before the interstate commerce commission.

Mr. Sweet said that Utah's coal production last year was 2,000,000 tons. If lower freight rates prevailed, and there was an adequate service of cars, he said that the production would be increased to 3,000,000 tons.

Mr. Sweet was the first witness called in two complaints filed by four coal companies against the Denver & Rio Grande and other railroads. The complaints seek a reduced rate on coal to Pacific coast points and also to the northwest and Kansas and Nebraska.

BRITISH DRIVE AHEAD AT YPRES

Penetrate Over Ridges Long Held by Germans; Prisoners Taken

BRITISH FRONT IN FRANCE AND BELGIUM, Oct. 4 (By The Associated Press).—The trial of strength among the strongholds comprising the German's carefully important system of defense along the Passchendaele-Ghelvelde ridge was renewed at dawn today, when the British again surged forward over a wide front to the east and northeast of Ypres. Within a few hours great success had already been recorded through the efforts of the government authorities here, he said. Close cooperation and free exchange of views between the representatives of both nations would help materially to attain the goal.

Mr. Mechnicki said that the Japanese industry is equal to the task of competing with the American manufacturers, especially in China.

"I want to know whether the European industries, paralyzed and further stopped by the war, are liberated afterwards, the American manufactured articles will invade the Far Eastern market, resulting in a keen commercial competition with Japan's special position towards China, he said.

On the northern wing the over-arching troops are battling forward within a short distance of Passchendaele; they have a footing on the famous Passchendaele ridge which pits out from the Passchendaele ridge to the west, and they have crushed their way through the blood-drenched Zonnebeke-Passchendaele ridge, which forms an integral part of the Passchendaele-Ghelvelde chain.

Between the villages of Brandeburg on the north and Nordendhoek on the south, at an early hour they were holding to the ridge itself in the face of heavy counter-attacks from the desperate enemy. Some had penetrated well beyond the hamlet of Brandeburg, in which the German forces formed by the highways between Zonnebeke and Brandeburg, where so many Germans have recently given their lives to the cause.

Further south, Cameron coast, which has been the scene of so much hard fighting, has been left well in the rear.

Everywhere the British army have done splendidly in the past few hours of the offensive, which is one of the most pretentious attempted this front. The attack was launched at 6 o'clock under heavy clouds and mist, there had been a slight drizzle during the night, which did some anxiety to the British observers, but the threatened heavier rain held off.

A tremendous barrage preceded the infantry into the enemy country, leaving a trail of death and devastation behind it. As the battle raged on, the German forces were broken up and the enemy rushed forward in many places and raised their hands in token of surrender. Prisoners were coming in much more rapidly and in greater numbers than in the last two days.

There was a unusual feature in the battle near Zonnebeke. Three German divisions had been ordered to retake the line the British captured last week. The attack was set for 6 o'clock. The German caught in the lull, and they were preparing to push forward and lost grievously. Once before, in August, around Lens, the British and Germans planned an attack at the same hour, and Canadian troops going over the top and advancing quickly came upon masses of Germans moving toward them in the thick fog, and a few minutes later the Germans were making their last stand on the parapets of their trenches.

The left wing of the British offensive today was heavily shelled by the Germans, and German wood and ironwork were put under an intense fire. The British casualties were reported as relatively light, but the British left wing, however, and much summary fighting seems certain before its close.

LOOK TO AMERICA TO BRING PEACE

Italian Historian Tells Why and What U. S. Is Doing

MILAN, Italy. (Correspondence of The Associated Press.)—America is preparing the army of disarmament, declared Signor Ferrero, Italian historian, in the statement published by the Secolo.

"The United States," asserted Signor Ferrero, "are preparing the new American army to defend their most sacred interests, to prevent Europe from falling under a hegemony which would menace the liberty of the world, and in order to have at the peace conference the necessary authority to summon the great states of Europe to lay down their arms."

"General disarmament after this war will be a necessity if the states of Europe do not wish to rush into barbarism and anarchy. America will rapidly create a vast army because she could not, without very grave danger to herself and to the equilibrium of the whole world, neglect to make a counterpoise in the new continent to the monstrous development of armaments in the old."

"The United States were never dominated either by militarism or imperialism. They have, indeed, been governed for five years by that one of the two American parties which is the more honest, more patriotic, and more just. To submit to conscription and to be sent to fight in Europe is for the Americans a much greater sacrifice than that of any other of the peoples of the Europe and to make for the defense of its frontiers and its very existence."

Assuming that the question, what is America doing in the war, is put many times a day to those presumed to know, Signor Ferrero stated:

"Many people—and among them are some members of the mission sent by the Italian government to the United States—are of opinion that the United States would give more help to the Allies by sending food, arms and money rather than soldiers. It is said that the transport of a large army from America to Europe would require the great number of ships, and would therefore implicate still further the provisioning of the Allies in Europe who are more in need of food and other necessary things than of men. But those who argue on these lines show that they have not understood the very profound reasons for America's intervention. America will help the Allies with money, food and metals, but also, and very largely, with men, because she needs today to create a large army."

Open New Discussion
TOKYO. (Correspondence.)—Representative Kato Tadamasa, who goes to the United States with the Japanese parliamentary delegation in September, is firmly convinced that the time has come to talk less of what he calls "the historical and the very profound reasons for America's intervention. America will help the Allies with money, food and metals, but also, and very largely, with men, because she needs today to create a large army."

Mr. Mechnicki is leader of the Constitution party in the present Japanese administration.

"As to the immediate objects of our visit, I might number them four," said Mr. Mechnicki to the Associated Press correspondent.

"I want to know whether, when the European industries, paralyzed and further stopped by the war, are liberated afterwards, the American manufactured articles will invade the Far Eastern market, resulting in a keen commercial competition with Japan's special position towards China, he said.

Mr. Mechnicki said that the Japanese industry is equal to the task of competing with the American manufacturers, especially in China.

WOULD PUT SINGLE MEN IN FIRST ARMY

NEW YORK, Oct. 5.—Recommendations that the liability of married men subject to military service by conscription be postponed until all available unmarried men shall have been called into service are made in a list of suggestions for the improvement of the administration of the draft act prepared here by a number of local board members, addressed to the President, the governor, the provost marshal general and state adjutant general.

Drafting of married men, while single men without dependents are not called, results, the recommendations state, in "much intense public dissatisfaction and resentment which, as the number of such cases increase, must more and more seriously impair public confidence in the whole principle of conscription and to that extent the successful conduct of the war."

This Was What She Wanted

By Will Seaton

MARK you. It's very nice, of course, but," began Marcella, coldly, pushing aside the jeweler's box beside her breakfast plate. "But! Oh, Marcella, won't you understand? The diamonds were quite another year thing. Perhaps," said Bruce.

"Another year there'll be some other excuse. I'm tired of excuses. You know what I wanted for my birthday. I've counted on it for weeks. If I had known that marrying a poor man meant this I might have been persuaded to follow father's advice," rejoined Marcella.

"Don't draw, please," pleaded Bruce. "I'm not a poor man. But I am an honest one, and just now when business is so dull I've not to keep a good reserve to tide things over. You can have almost everything you heart desires, but I couldn't quite see my way clear to tie up thousands in those diamonds just now and perhaps make others suffer for my extravagance. If because of that you still wish that you had listened to your father and married a toothless old plutocrat who could give you diamonds whenever you breathed a wish for them—well, perhaps it's not too late. With these words Bruce rose and left the house.

In a temper, Marcella flew to her room. Bruce would repent his words. He might even regret not having given her the diamonds. But he would not find her sitting at home waiting for him. She ordered her car—the one Bruce had given her for an anniversary present. She would drive it herself—and on and on—and to some place where it would not be easy for him to find her.

Her heart was eaten with bitterness and discontent as she traveled up and down and down another. She neither minded nor cared whether her course led until she was recalled to herself by her parched throat and a consuming thirst. A cottage, so tiny that it seemed a play-house rather than a home for grown-up folk, caught her eye. Seeing a figure on the porch, she drew up at the gate and walked up the bordered path. When she reached the steps a girl arose and came forward. "How do you do?" she said.

"How do," said Marcella. She was wondering how the glorious bronze-crowned creature happened to be sitting, clad in a green print gown, on the porch of this tiny house, when she looked as though she might grace the palaces of kings. "I've been riding for hours," continued Marcella. "And I'm so thirsty. May I have a drink?"

After the refreshing drink it seemed to Marcella the natural thing to accept the invitation of her little hostess when she said: "If you've ridden a long way, you're tired, I know. Do come and sit on our cool little porch and get rested."

Seated on the porch, Marcella stared in surprise at a display on the farther end of it. There were hundreds of roses of every color, size and variety, arranged in vases, fruit jars, stone crocks, tin pails and tin cans. To the side of this mass of bloom there was stacked an assortment of miscellaneous articles.

Noticing her guest's glance, the hostess broke into a mischievous laugh.

"When I invited you to rest here I had for the moment forgotten my birthday," she explained. "But now, since you've arrived, I'll explain it to you. It's such a happy one, I'd like to tell you about it. The roses—there are six hundred of them—were sent to me by a club of girls in the city. They are girls whom I have tried to help in one way or another. The note that came with the birthday gift says that each girl brought her own three roses to send, which accounts for the many different kinds of roses here.

"Wasn't it dear of them? This big aluminum tea-kettle was Ned's present. It may look awfully prosaic to a mere outsider, but if you could have seen my old green copper one! I just couldn't keep it looking clean and it leaked. So when Ned brought this I almost cried. I was so glad. I would have welcomed even a tin one, but aluminum ware was beyond my wildest dreams. Ned is my husband, you know."

"Your husband?" cried Marcella in astonishment.

The girl nodded and continued: "This boy is Billy's present. He's only five years old, and he thought of it all by himself, because I'm always losing the laundry lists. He went down to the five-and-ten-cent store and bought it with five pennies he had saved himself. Do you know I imagine that long after I stop using that for laundry lists it will lie in my drawer of precious things?"

"The 'Tempest' was another gift from Ned. When he gave me the kettle and this book he said that the poetic would always go along with the prosaic in my life so long as he could make it. It's such things that make homely things so precious and husbands so dear, isn't it? This is the fifth volume I have of Shakespeare in this edition. Oh, do you wonder that I am a happy person?" echoed the girl with another joyous laugh.

"It's my birthday, too," said Marcella. "But I am not happy. My husband gave me a pearl lavalliere."

"Oh!" breathed the girl. "Wasn't that lovely? And you needn't tell me why you aren't happy. I know. You were afraid he couldn't afford it—that he was denying himself something to make you happy. But don't let that worry you, dear, because I'm sure he's so happy in making you happy. And would you mind telling me what your children gave you? I think there's nothing in the world quite so dear as the fussy little thoughts that children put into their gifts."

"Why, I—I haven't any children," stammered Marcella, and for the first time in the seven years of her married life she felt shame and regret at having to make the confession.

"You poor dear!" cried the girl. "Forgive me for asking, won't you? And must you go?" as Marcella rose. "Then I want to tell you that I remember you. I used to live in that little cottage around the corner from your house. Don't you remember that little red-headed girl who was forever preening through the pickets? Babs Blakey was my name. One day I made a face at you because I envied your lovely clothes, and I thought you were 'stuck up,' as I told my mother. You made a face back, and then we fell to and had a regular fist fight until your nurse and my mother separated us!"

"I do remember," said Marcella, laughing heartily. "I remember, too, that we used to have our birthday parties on the same day every year, and I always envied you because you had such lovely things, playing real games, like hide-and-seek and blind man's bluff, while my parties were always such very dignified affairs, with highly appropriate and lovely favors at the end. And I still envy you, Babs. But I must hurry back now. Thank you, and may I come again?"

"Oh, may you?" laughed Babs. "Will you?"

Marcella had succeeded in her purpose of the morning. Bruce had come to an empty house instead of a waiting wife. He had been there an hour and was in his den, thinking bitter, disappointed thoughts, when a warm, dusty little figure slipped into the big chair beside him and lifting up his lounging coat, nestled close to his heart, just as in those first days when his girl had defied father and friends and great wealth for his sake.

"Bruce, dear, you do forgive me, don't you?" said the dusty one after a moment of comfort snuggling. "The lavalliere is lovely and it's going to mean more to me than you'd ever think, a lavalliere could mean to any one. It's the beginning of things for me. I don't want the diamonds—not now or ever. They're hard and cold, just like I've been lately. I'd love to have an aluminum tea kettle and a volume of Shakespeare in a cheap edition each year—"

"Darling, dear, whatever—"

But a soft, fragrant hand closed over Bruce's lips and Marcella explained.

The Great Gentle Prophecy

By Annette Angert

WITH the rush of hands from the floor of the grimy, tall shirt factory came Lindell Prior. She moved alone, looking straight ahead, with a pathetic despair in her gray eyes. The open collar of her blouse showed her thin young throat with an ominous hollow at its base. There were other hollows in her cheeks. She attempted to draw a deep breath and coughed.

All that Saturday morning she had sat at a power-driven machine that ground and chewed cloth with an insatiable demand for more. It seemed to her sometimes that she had sat at the machine all her life.

And yet when she dared she could remember a happy time when she was loved and cared for and nothing less lovely than blue sky and green fields had surrounded her. Her gentle father—he called himself a failure—had preached in a little gray church which directed heavenward a dozen plain families. When he died Lindell had gone to the city, not lured but driven by necessity. She got a room with a family she knew. From that time as long as her money lasted she sought fruitlessly for steady employment. At last she found herself in the shirt factory. And there she stayed.

A pushcart peddler close to the sidewalk left off his startling street cry in her very face. She paused and glanced toward him. He was selling flowers—laurel, bound into pink and white bunches, still fresh, though so far from home. Laurel!

"How much?" Lindell asked impulsively.

"Ten cents, lady." He thrust a bunch toward her.

Lindell plunged a trembling hand into her purse. A moment later she was going on with a quivering step, the laurel in her hands.

"Say, you're sure an easy mark." A big girl with bold eyes had overtaken her. "Ten cents for them dinky old flowers! I'd rather a' had ice cream."

"But you see, Floss," Lindell began gently. It flashed over her that her companion could not be made to understand what the laurel meant to her, now it reminded her of the mountains where she had had her happy young girlhood; of the tiny parsonage, made sweet for a Sabbath afternoon. "I prefer the laurel," she finished faintly.

Lindell went home. She called it home, but it really was only a soiled little room on the fifth floor of a vile tenement. The one window looked out on pulley lines, fire escapes and tin cans. There was an odor of escaping gas everywhere. Lindell closed the door and crowded the laurel into her water pitcher. Then she sat down before it.

It was an hour later that she started. She put on her best clothes—her worn blue skirt, long out of fashion; her best white waist, her round black hat. She carried her coat, and her purse with $5, her week's wages, in it, and a little package containing the last of the rolls and an orange. She told Mrs. Granigan, whom she met on the stairs, that she would be back Monday morning.

She walked a mile to the station and took the train. It was evening when she alighted at a little wayside station. Up the valley she saw the finger of a steeply pointing. With a smile she started toward it.

She walked a mile and sat down on a rock to rest. She was in a little clump of woods, without undergrowth. Through the trees the rose and pearl sunset gleamed. The day was going out in perfect peace and beauty. It was so silent there that Lindell could hear the throbbing of her own heart. It was so sweet that she seemed to breathe perfume. "It was so holy that she shut her eyes and prayed. "God keep me! God help me!" She was faint and weary. She remembered the faded she had brought away from Mrs. Granigan's. She had left it on the train.

"I must be crazy," she thought, smiling faintly. "However, it doesn't matter. I'm not hungry in the least. Father used to say that when the spirit was fed the body suffered not. Dear father, before I sleep I shall see the house where you and I were so happy together. And then—" She became bewildered. "I can't seem to think. How curious! It must be the silence. I have been used to the turmoil of the streets and factory, and tenement so long. It is heavenly restful here. Why, one could die here and never mind. I wonder if I am going to die—I wonder if any one would—Will father—up—there—" She slid sideways. Her cheek touched a pillow of moss and rested. She did not move again.

A wagon creaked through the woods. A pair of big iron gray horses with fetlocks long enough to be stepped on and manes to their knees, drew the wagon. On the seat sat a young man, with his black hair uncovered. He leaned forward on his knees, holding the lines loosely and whistling very softly. He had a dark, severely cut face, that denoted clean living, health and resolution.

"Whoa!" he said, sharply. And as the team paused he gave an exclamation. "Good God! What's this?"

It was only a girl, with a face as sweet and white as a mountain flower.

For a moment he stared at her unbelievingly. Then he sprang over the wheel. At first he thought that she was asleep and then he feared that she was dead. "That instant Lindell opened her eyes. They remained a moment looking quietly at each other. Then she tried to raise herself, and he helped her with a powerful arm.

"I must have fainted," she whispered.

He smiled joyfully into her face. "You're all right now. Your color is coming back. Do you want to stand? There! Just rest on me. Imagine I'm a tree or a rock—I'm nearly as strong as either. But my mother—she's just such a frail little thing as you."

She looked up at him with beautiful, grateful eyes. "And my father was big and strong like you. He used to preach in the church over there. I am going there now."

He interrupted her eagerly. "Your father? Was he Max Prior? We've heard of him—and you. We came to the farm, mother and I, after he died and you went away. Nobody preaches here now. We have to go to town for that. Miss Prior, can you climb up the wheel into my wagon? You won't fall. I won't let you."

A quarter of a mile farther on they came to a white farmhouse, where a woman waited, and a dog bounded out to meet them.

"Here's home," said John West. "Mother, come here. Here's a guest for you. You complained of being lonely. Don't say you won't stop, Miss Prior. You must. Mother wants you."

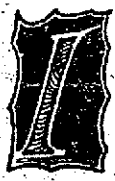

Later, fed and comforted, Lindell lay in a bed and breathed the scent of pine outside the window while Mrs. West held her hand, and heard her story.

"Go back to the city?" cried John's mother. "I shan't hear of it. You must stay here and get well. You've a long, happy life before you, child, and I'm going to help you to it."

A long, happy life! All night the words sang in Lindell's dreams. A long, happy life. She smiled in her sleep, feeling even there that gentle prophecy.

All Because He Loved Her

By Walt Gregg

IT was 6 o'clock and she began to watch the street corner. She had finished her embroidery to the last stitch, and supper was ready. There seemed no reason why she should not sit for once with her hands folded.

It seemed vain to pray for anything so worldly as that a mere corporation might continue business, and yet, being essentially religious, she did pray. There was no earthly help to turn to, and if the corporation failed, as it was rumored, she was as good as destitute.

What then? She did not know. She supposed she could do something, although she had been trained for nothing except homekeeping. Since she had married at seventeen, when her parents chose for her. For seventeen long years she had been widow. Gwendolen, her daughter, was now grown up.

She sighed heavily. Gwendolen was like her father. However, she worshipped Gwendolen. But for Gwendolen she would never have been living in this expensive, rented, house far away from her old friends. Gwendolen had fallen in love with Aries. She must live there and nowhere else. And so they had come, although the expense was greater than they could afford. For two quarters now she had received no dividend from her investment, and certain newspaper rumors filled her with apprehension. So she prayed. In the meantime she was using up her last few hundreds of loose money. Of this Gwendolen was not aware. Perhaps even if she were told she would not understand. She was like her father when it came to business. As long as there was an uninterrupted flow of income she was content; she never concerned herself about the source. The whole control of her small fortune developed upon Candace herself, and she alone knew how inadequately she was fitted for the position.

There was a flirt of white at the corner and the sound of young voices.

Gwendolen, in the middy suit of white linen, with a scarlet ribbon wound in her black hair, appeared. She was swinging a tennis racket. A young fellow, also in white, kept step with her. They parried reluctantly with a great deal of calling back and forth, and Gwendolen came in alone.

"Supper, mother! I'm famished," she panted as she wilted on a chair arm. "We played four sets and Bob and I won. But I'm tired. Oh! And Helena Waters has asked us over to dance tonight on the veranda. Did you finish my voile?"

"About twenty minutes ago," Candace held up the dainty, filmy blouse adorned with her own handwork. "How do you like it, dearest?"

"It's pretty," the girl returned, carelessly. "But I'm more interested in my supper. Tennis gives me such an appetite."

Candace rose and went out, and presently called her daughter.

"Salmon! Gwendolen said, with a discontented glance over the table. "Why don't we have chicken any more?"

"You know, dear, we're rather short of money just now," Candace answered.

"Oh, yes, I know. That old rubber corporation. Mr. Leeds said something to me about it this afternoon. He's in it, too."

"He came to the grounds for a few minutes and looked on. He said he was going away."

"Going away?"

"I forgot where, Manitoba, I think," Candace stared at the girl.

"Don't you care?"

"Care?" cried Gwendolen, staring frankly back. "Why should I? I've Bobby left. She set her chin in her palm in an attitude of argument. "Now, look here, mother, that Leeds business is all your imagination. He doesn't want me. I don't want him. Why, he's old enough for you!"

"But—but he's been coming here so much. I thought—I hoped—Candace faltered. It had been the desire of her heart that Gwendolen should love this big, gray, kindly man. She had been almost happy in the prospect of Gwendolen's marrying him. He was the very man for the child. Why couldn't Gwendolen see it? Tears stood in her eyes. "If I romanced I thought I had reason for it," she ended faintly.

Gwendolen laughed. "Not the least reason, mother. Why, any one of ten has paid me more attention than Mr. Leeds ever has. And I like any one of them as well. I like Bob better."

She colored. "I like him a thousand times better. You see, mother, it was Bob and not this place I fell in love with. That's why I coaxed you to come here. I wanted to be near Bob. It's the girl on the spot, you know. And now I expect every minute he'll propose. I'm just living in hope, mother! What in the world?"

For Candace had crumpled up over the table in an attack of weeping. So it was to be Bobby Graham and not Hubert Leeds, after all, for Gwendolen! She had only built an air castle. Ah, well, she must make the best of it. But suppose the corporation failed? Bobby could never take care of Gwendolen without assistance. The two together would be as helpless as a pair of children. This other man, so strong, so keen witted, so brave, she could have looked to for support!

Bob would only be another burden for her to carry.

As soon as she could she dried her eyes, kissed Gwendolen and laughed at her own foolishness. Then she did the girl's hair over and helped her dress for the dance. Gwendolen looked beautiful with her sparkle and color. Bob Graham called for her and they went away laughing at something.

The door bell was ringing. She snatched off her apron and went to answer it. Hubert Leeds stood there looking down into her face.

He had come to "bid her good-by," she thought, as she led him into the parlor. She braced herself to be calm and indifferent. In the mirror she saw herself—almost girlishly formed, with her fair hair piled high and her face showing so little of her awful anxieties.

"Gwendolen tells me that you are going away," she said at last.

He smiled gravely. "That was my intention. But I have had occasion to alter my plan—suddenly. And then so quickly that it took her breath away, he crossed the room, leaned over her chair, and asked, "Candace, will you marry me?"

She looked up at him. "But I thought you wanted Gwendolen."

"I never wanted Gwendolen; I always wanted you."

"But still you are going away," she persisted.

"Not without asking you. And then only for a short time. However, I have arranged that. My land up there must take care of itself. I have affairs here that demand my presence. That rubber concern has failed. It is in all the evening papers."

"Failed?" cried Candace. She turned white. "Then I'm destitute!"

He took her in his arms. "Oh, no! You are going to marry me, and I have money enough left for both. And for Gwendolen and Bobby, too, if they need it."

She was crying on his shoulder. "My money is gone, Gwendolen is engaged to the wrong man, and yet I'm happy," she said.

"Of course," he smiled.

"It's because I love you," she said. "And because I love you," he whispered.

She Wasn't Playing Any More

AND wakes! Corinne Webster, ain't you got them peas shelled yet? When I advertised to have dinner at half past 12, I don't fidget on keepin' folks waitin' till 1 or after. Jest set that pan along this way, I s'pose I'll have to lend a hand, though, dear knows, it does seem as if you might do your day dreamin' or nighs, and try to be of some help to me these busy days. I kersa 'twouldn't have taken but jest about one more year's schoolin' to have spoiled a perfectly good girl."

"Meaning me, mother," laughed Corinne, softly.

Mrs. Webster snapped a pod under her thumb. "An' nobody else," she said fairly, but her eyes belied her words, as they rested on her pretty daughter.

"It does heat all," she went on, more slowly. "How little you favor the Whippies. I dunno as you're so much to blame, seem' as you're only your father all over again, and I started in wrong anyway, afitin' him have his own way an' callin' you 'Corinne' instead of some good, sensible name like Julia. Maybe you'd be more like your Aunt Julia."

"But I like the name that daddy gave me, and I wouldn't want to be—" "Tut!" interrupted Mrs. Webster. "Your Aunt Julia's a mighty smart woman, and a powerful hand at managing. If I'd been more like her, maybe I wouldn't be taking summer boarders now, and you wouldn't have so many peas to shell."

"But I like the boarders, too," laughed Corinne, happily. "Did you ever see anything as pretty as Miss Elliott this morning, in that white pique and pink silk sweater? Oh, mother! I'd like to be one of them myself."

"Like to be one of what?" demanded Mrs. Webster, setting a great bowl of raspberries on the table with unnecessary force, and turning to look at Corinne.

But Corinne, with flushed cheeks and eyes dark with wistful longing, faced her mother unflinchingly. "I'd like to be a summer boarder myself. I'd like to arrive, and depart, and do all the things that go between. I'd like to be walked on, and entered to, and—oh, I'd love to have a pink silk sweater!"

"For the land sakes, Corinne Webster, have you got clean daff?"

"Dippy," I suppose Mrs. Tennyson would say," murmured Corinne mischievously.

"Corinne! I won't have you talking slang," protested Mrs. Webster; but her voice lacked its usual sharpness, and she added gently, "I s'pose you are kind of tuckered out. It's been a hard summer, and you've took hold real well."

"Frenzied finance. Her husband—I saved $500 today. His wife—How did you do it? Her husband—Smith offered to sell me his automobile for that sum, but I didn't have the money."

"It would seem so. And does your husband still think you are an angel?" asked the privileged friend.

"I guess so," answered the bride of one short year. "At least he seems to think I don't need any new clothes."

On the Quiet.

"Oh, George!" exclaimed the bride of six short months, looking up from the paper she was perusing, "here is an account of a woman who was suddenly stricken dumb during a thunderstorm. Do you suppose her husband will love her still?"

"Sure thing," replied George. "Any man who wouldn't love his wife still, deserves the happy fate of an old bachelor."

Wisdom of Mother.

"My husband," said the fair bride, "says I am his right hand."

"I hope," rejoined her mother, "that he isn't like that man who never left his right hand know what his left hand does."

All the Same to Him.

"Aren't you glad to see a change in the weather?" queried the optimist.

"Oh, not necessarily," rejoined the pessimist. "One might as well worry about one kind of weather as another."

Not Like a Hen.

"The female cockfish," remarked the boarder who had been "cleaning stables from between the covers of a patent-medicine almanac, "lays more than a million eggs. Now what do you think of that?"

"I think," rejoined the cheerful Idiot, "that it's a mighty lucky thing for the cockfish that she doesn't have to rattle over every egg."

Couldn't Pay.

"Pare, please," said the street-car conductor, extending his hand toward the strap hanger.

"Nothing doing," rejoined the latter. "Can't you see I'm strapped?"

Learned to Loaf.

"What ever put it into your head that you didn't have to work?" demanded the stern business man.

"Why, boss," responded the lean wanderer, "when I was a young man a rural community sent me to congress!"

For a moment he stared at her unbelievingly. Then he sprang over the wheel. At first he thought that she was asleep and then he feared that she was dead. "That instant Lindell opened her eyes. FRESNO AGAIN BIDS GODSPEED TO 353 SELECTED SOLDIERS OF AMERICA'S ARMY OF FREEDOM

Silent Throngs Again Watch Long Line of Cheering Boys, Laden With Gifts, Parade Through Streets; Mothers Weep at Depot

Again through silent lanes of people, 353 soldiers of Fresno, called from the rippling fields of the valley to the devastated fields of battle, swung along the streets with an easy step to the music of a band. Again the only cheers were the cheers of the men themselves. Again a train slowly pulled out of the depot, carrying 353 human units to be quickly absorbed into a mighty force for the defense of the ideals of a nation. Again aged mothers, sweet-faced little sisters and heart-broken little maidens in whose plan of life these men had seemed so big a part, made their uncomplaining sacrifice and smiled until their smiles were wept away by a flood of tears and shaking sobs as but a thin line of smoke, streaking the sky, symbolized their grief.

Again it was on a man-size errand of their country that these men went, shouting, laughing, singing, cheering. Again they were led through the streets by thin ranks of veterans of two wars. It was as if the veterans had led forth one division of men to war and had gone back and assembled another.

And the question was on many lips: How many times will these veterans form escort to other long lines of Fresno boys called to the flag and to war?

But if the 353 lads who left yesterday afternoon for Camp Lewis at American Lake marched in uneven line, some with shoulders stooped, some with long, awkward strides, some with chains down, others with heads held high, when they come back—those that do come—will march with finer step and straighter backs than yesterday. They will come back like men born to the uniform. And it is then that all the cheers that grief held back yesterday will swell into a mighty roar.

Escorted to Train.

The 353 boys—61 from Fresno City and the rest from the county districts—gathered at the Auditorium yesterday morning and answered to roll call. Not one was missing. As each name was called, "Here" rang through the hall to the accompaniment of cheers. After luncheon had been served by the Red Cross and the bronze souvenir buttons distributed, the parade to the depot was begun.

The short, but significant procession was headed by a platoon of police in command of Chief Goebbing. Then came Mayor Toomey and other city officials. The Fresno chapter of the Red Cross, preceded by a huge American flag borne aloft by Mrs. H. J. Elliff and Mrs. O. B. Bergeron. Little Mary Palda and Raymond Sarrell carried the battle-scarred flag of the Spanish-American war veterans.

After them came a thin line of members of the Grand Army of the Republic, under command of Henry Russell and J. A. Burns. Directly behind them marched a small group of soldiers of the Confederacy, followed by a company of Spanish-American war veterans under command of Major Jones and George Hudson.

A large number of members of the Fresno Home Guard companies, under command of the four captains marched next, followed by an automobile upon which were draped both the American and Canadian flags. In the car were officers of the United States army and navy, the marine corps and the Canadian army. Sergeant Williams and Private Glen O. Pontius represented the American army. Sergeant G. J. Bohm represented the British forces. Sergeant W. W. Blane and Corporal Gray represented the marine corps and Chief Quartermaster W. H. Morris and K. W. Wheeler the navy.

Then came the selected men, heavily burdened with gifts—sweaters, socks and comfort bags; small American flags presented to them by the employees of the Woolworth store, drinking cups from the employees of the Iverson & Harvey Company, safety razors given them by W. V. Eden, secretary and manager of the Fresno Abstract company.

After the boys came a host of relatives and sweethearts. And some of the sisters and sweethearts didn't walk at the end of the line—no street many of them walked right along with the soldier boys—held hands all the way along the line of march.

The baggage of the boys was transported to the depot by trucks loaned to the occasion by the Willys-Overland company of California; Don Lee, secretary and manager of the Logan Auto Co., and Waterman Bros.
